Tarbutton Murdered, Eyewitness Declares

J. J. TANNER KILLED WRIGHTSVILLE MAN COVINGTON STATES

Was Within 50 or 75 Yards of Scene of Killing, Farmer Testifies at Hearing.

CASE BEING HEARD BEFORE 3 JUSTICES

Life of Slain Man Was Insured for Approximately $200,000, Witnesses Testify at Trial.

Wrightsville, Ga., February 27.—"I saw Tanner raise his gun and shoot Mr. Tarbutton." With this statement, made by Noah Covington, who claims he was an eyewitness to the killing of Gus A. Tarbutton, the prosecution exploited its long expected bomb today in the commitment hearing for J. J. Tanner, accused of murder, and C. G. Hawkins, held as accessory before the fact.

Following the dramatic recital of Covington, which was made in a courtroom almost breathlessly still, the state rested its case. The hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, when the defense will present its case.

Covington swore that he was no more than 50 or 75 yards from the scene of the tragedy when, he declared, he saw Tanner raise his gun to his shoulder and fire point blank into the body of Tarbutton. Then, he said, Tanner dropped to his knees and Tarbutton fell.

Courtroom Deafly Silent.

The testimony of Covington set at rest rumors circulated here for two days that the state would produce an "eye-witness" to the killing, and came as a climax to other witnesses, who preceded him on the stand.

As Covington's name was called and he walked to the stand, there was an almost death-like silence in the courtroom, as the immense crowd was intent upon hearing every word of his testimony, which was brief.

"On the day of the killing," Covington testified, "I went to the Oconee river to look over some suitable fishing grounds. Several weeks before, G. A. Tarbutton had granted me permission to use one of the houses on his farm, situated near the Oconee river, which I intended using while I fished in the river. Late on the day of the killing, I heard voices, and as the land was

THREE MEN ADRIPT IN ATLANTIC OCEAN 30 DAYS RESCUED

East Hampton, L. I., February 27. Adrift in the Atlantic ocean for almost one month, three men in an open boat were rescued by the crew of the Texas Oil company tanker Lightburne, about 375 miles north of Miami, Fla., late this afternoon, according to a wireless dispatch picked up by the independent Wireless company's station here.

The trio, emaciated and facing starvation, are said to have been carried out from Miami by a storm.

The steamer Lightburne was bound from Norfolk, Va., to Galveston, Texas, when she encountered the drifting boat.

According to the wireless message, the men were weak, but recovering about the vessel.

"A notable lift, ma'am," said the butler; "it carries both millionaires and swill."

And there was the count who was a riding master.

And the footman who dropped the yellow tea set (he had a sense of color) and was invited to the wedding.

Ardent Defense of Flapper Made by Harrison Fisher

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
New York, February 27.—In the goodly old days of feminine modesty, when a dab of rouge was looked upon as the brand of the fast, not to say loose, kind of girl, and the curriculum of Vassar included a course in maidenly fainting, Harrison Fisher came to New York from the west to draw pictures for bonbon boxes, magazine covers and the calendars that came on New Year's day.

Mr. Fisher is still drawing pictures of pretty girls, but as he goes over the old drawings, which have been accumulating all these years in the closets of his studio, destroying thousands of them, he wonders what was wrong with his judgment then. And to make it more absurd, he fancied himself as a rare judge of what was good to look at.

"I thought they were beauties," he remarked, sheepishly, waggling his bay forelock and his spare chin, as he looked upon a couple of corseted, pompadoured, smirking belles with a high fever-blush on their cheeks, before tearing them to scraps.

"The next time some free-lance alarmist blows a police whistle and starts to scream that our girls today

'DIVORCE FRAUDS' PROBE PROMISED COUNTY BOARD AID

Full cooperation in correcting what is termed "widespread divorce frauds" in Fulton county courts Friday was promised by the Fulton County commission and the Atlanta Bar association.

This action came as a result of recommendations in presentations of the Fulton county grand jury in Judge John D. Humphreys court earlier in the day.

These presentations cited alleged misconduct of "certain" Atlanta lawyers in handling divorce cases of "questionable character," and recommended action on the part of the commission and the bar association.

Members of the Fulton county commission stated Friday night that they were in favor of appropriating funds to investigate and prosecute "instances of fraud," which are said to have been used to get "easy divorces" in Fulton county courts. The matter probably will be looked into further at the regular meeting of the commission Wednesday, it was said.

Bar Ready to Act.

The grievance committee of the Bar association is subject to call any time, and will consider evidence of misconduct on any member of the legal fraternity in Atlanta, it was announced by Grover Middlebrooks, president.

"I have not read the text of the presentations of the Fulton county grand jury, but I have read excerpts printed in the papers relative to the alleged misconduct of Atlanta lawyers, whose names were not made public," Mr. Middlebrooks said in a formal statement. "If the grand jury will turn over to the Atlanta Bar association evidence tending to show that any lawyer in Atlanta is guilty of a crime or other conduct, for which he could and should be disbarred, a prompt investigation will be made by the grievance committee, which is headed by Robert P. Jones."

POWER COMPANY BUS LINE PLEA GIVEN APPROVAL

Further definite steps placing Atlanta's entire transportation system under one head were taken Friday by the streets committee of city council, when members voted to grant a petition filed by Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway & Power Co., and H. M. Atkinson, chairman of the board, to establish two motor coach lines in coordination with service furnished by the street railway company.

At the same time the committee denied requests to continue operation over present routes made by the Crosstown Express Co., Inc., and the Atlanta Colored Coach Lines, Inc.

Condition Is Made.

To the permit granted Arkwright and Atkinson, however, is a provision which stated that the Georgia Railway & Power Co. must "agree to furnish motor bus service from a connection with its street car line at Peachtree and Fifteenth streets through Ansley park, Piedmont avenue and Morningside drive to Rock Springs road, such service to begin not later than March 8, 1925, and to be continued until the permanent coach service through this same territory, as petitioned for by the Georgia Railway & Power Co. is placed in operation; and provided further that the Georgia Railway & Power Co. will agree to furnish and maintain motor

300 Are Killed In Explosion Of Dynamite

Hundreds of Others Wounded Upon Island Near Rio de Janeiro.

Rio de Janeiro, February 27.—Three hundred persons were killed, it is feared, in an explosion of 3,000 cases of dynamite during an oil fire Friday on the Island of Caju.

Hundreds of others are wounded, many deaths are reported from fright, and the majority of the wounded have been made deaf. All the victims are Brazilian laborers and firemen, who were fighting the flames. The oil belonged to the Atlantic Refining company.

Fifty explosions occurred on the island between 5 o'clock and 7.

The roof of the Phoenix theater here crashed in and houses in the vicinity of the island collapsed from which is 10 miles from the island.

A volunteer rescue expedition of civil and military physicians and surgeons, accompanied by all the ambulances that could be mustered in Rio, were rushed across Guanabara bay and thence to Niteroi, which is the tremendous impact of the blast. Windows were broken in this city, near Caju.

LARGE BATTLESHIP CALLED OBSOLETE BY ADMIRAL SIMS

Airplanes and Submarines Are Greatest Need of American Navy, He Tells House Committee.

COUNTER-BARRAGE SET UP BY WEEKS

Muzzling of Air Service Officers in Testifying Before Probe Committee Denied by War Secretary

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, February 27.—Back in his familiar role again, Rear Admiral William S. Sims, retired, has taken a star part in the controversy between the battleship and the airplane, and as usual, he has aligned himself directly against the naval board. His declaration that the battleship is obsolete, and that airplanes and submarines are the greatest need of the American navy, was regarded by members of the house aircraft investigating committee as strengthening the case of Brigadier General Mitchell.

"The general board's report says the battleship is the backbone of the fleet," Representative Perkins suggested.

Battleship's Back Broken.

"Yes, but it's broken," Admiral Sims fired back. "It is my opinion that the capital ship of the future will be the airplane carrier. The nation that commands the air over a land or sea force will bring either to submission. The only way to fight back would be by anti-aircraft guns, and anti-aircraft fire is extremely ineffective."

"I think the navy therefore should build light airplane carriers instead of cruisers."

"It is a curious thing, but you can't change the minds of the navy conservatives. You have to shed their blood before they change, or they'll hang on until some disaster comes along. With an adequate air and submarine force, no nation will bother us."

At the war department, Secretary Weeks set up a counter barrage in the form of a long letter to Chairman Perkins of the house committee.

FLU SITUATION NOT DANGEROUS

Health Officials Admit Many Cases of Dread Disease, but See No Cause for Alarm.

There is no occasion for alarm because of the prevalence of influenza which seems to be sweeping Georgia at the present time, Dr. T. F. Abernethy, secretary of the state board of health declared on Friday.

Dr. Abernethy admitted that within the past two weeks there have been reported to the state health board over 2,000 cases of the disease and that there are probably thousands of other cases which are unreported, either through neglect of attending physicians or because the families do not require the services of a doctor.

Dr. Abernethy asserts that there is no reason for the cry of epidemic and that proper care taken by all persons will be their shield against the disease.

In 1920, when Georgia suffered its greatest epidemic of influenza there were reported to the bureau of vital statistics a total of 2,580 deaths from this cause, and there has been a decrease in the number of deaths by influenza year by year ever since, according to health officials.

No Cause for Alarm.

Counting the 2,000 or more cases of influenza that the department knows of, as well as the thousands of cases we have no knowledge of by tabulation, there is absolutely no cause for anyone to become alarmed," said Dr. Abernethy. "There is no epidemic of influenza at the present

REPUBLICANS TAKE FIRST STEP TO BAR RADICAL SENATORS

La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier Assigned to Places at Bottom of Committee Lists.

DEMOCRATS STEER CLEAR OF QUARREL

G. O. P. Committee Action Taken Over Written Protest of All Radicals Except La Follette.

Washington, February 27.—With but a single dissenting voice, the republican committee on committees took the first step today toward carrying through the organization program for the removal of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, and three of his chief supporters from their present ranks on the standing committees of the senate.

The four senators were assigned tentatively to places at the bottom of the committee lists, as though they had been elected on an independent instead of the republican ticket. This action is subject, first, to consideration by a republican party conference, and later by the senate itself.

Taken Over Written Protest.

The action was taken over the written protest of three of the senators—Brookhart, of Iowa, and Ladd and Frazier, of North Dakota—in replies to letters it sent today asking whether they desired the democrats or republicans to make their committee assignments. It had received no reply from Senator La Follette.

Senator Brookhart, in his letter to Chairman Watson, of the committee on committees, announced he would take his fight to the senate, and Senator Frazier demanded further explanation regarding the committee's inquiry, asking if it was "possible that the members of the committee are so presumptuous as to take it upon themselves to resolve arbitrarily what the politics of the members of the senate are, regardless of the facts?"

Chairman Watson said the committee had decided not to reply to the letters and to proceed to put into effect the resolution adopted by the republican senate conference at the opening of this session, under which

PERJURY CHARGED IN SWAIN CASE

Testimony That Slain Man Sought To Draw Gun Causes Arrest of Men by Solicitor.

Macon, Ga., February 27.—Four witnesses, three white men and a negro, alleged to have perjured themselves in an effort to save James A. Swain from the electric chair during his trial this week in Bibb superior court, were arrested tonight by deputy sheriffs and held in the county jail in default of bonds of $5,000 each.

The men under arrest are: G. D. Welch, employed in the shops of the Central of Georgia railroad; D. W. Welch, Central shopman; J. P. Kitchen, street car conductor, and Will O'Neal, negro painter and paperhanger.

The perjury action against the four, which came on the heels of Swain's conviction and sentence to the electric chair at the conclusion of a four-day trial Thursday, was taken on the instance of Charles H. Garrett, solicitor general of the Macon circuit of the superior court.

Much evidence, Solicitor Garrett declared, of wholesale perjury among the defense witnesses, had been brought to his official notice during and subsequent to the trial of Swain. Mr. Garrett stated that he had positive material proof that at least two of the arrested witnesses had "lied outright," and enough circumstantial proof, with promise of more, "that the others had also."

Leroy Johnston, brother of J. Walter Johnston, who was slain by Swain on December 16 last, was in consultation with Solicitor Garrett.

Vanity of Escaped Thief Leads to His Early Capture

New York, February 27.—Vanity, the plague of so many accomplished thieves, betrayed Frank Telfer into the arms of the police Friday and started him back to the New Jersey state prison at Trenton, where he now stands no chance of being paroled before the expiration of his maximum term of 60 years.

Telfer couldn't resist the temptation to taunt the men who had sent him away. Therefore, after he had escaped from Trenton last Monday under cover of a heavy fog, he called up Jersey City police headquarters and left a message for Chief Battersby, his old enemy.

"Tell Battersby that I'm out in less than a year, as I said I would be," he jeered on the phone. "And tell him I'm going to pull a few sticks-up in Jersey city right away."

"Wait a minute till I connect you with the chief himself," said the police operator.

"Take another look at me, brother," said Telfer, wise in his craft. "Don't pull that 'wait a minute' gag on a smart guy and then go tracing this call. Just give the chief my regards."

Telfer rang off and vanished, but the police traced the call nevertheless.

less and detectives were sent out to look for him.

Friday afternoon, two New Jersey detectives and two men of the New York force who had arrested Telfer before were walking along St. Nicholas avenue far uptown from the cabaret zone which Telfer used to haunt.

"My God," exclaimed Joe Daley, one of the New York detectives, "Here he comes straight at us," and threw himself upon Telfer. There was a sharp fight, but Telfer was crushed to the pavement. He left New York for Trenton in irons, to serve a certain period in solitary confinement. He will never be made a trusty now and he will have to serve his full term of 60 years.

"They're all conceited," said Detective Joe Daley. "They all like to come back and strut about the streets, thinking the cops are too stupid to nail them. If Telfer had kept his mouth shut, he might have got away."

Telfer, who is less than 30 today, was a notorious spender along Broadway when he was running his career robbing stores and wayfarers in lonely Jersey localities. He would leave a cabaret at 2 o'clock in the morning as a rule and do a "job" in some isolated section before going to bed, to get money for the next night's round of pleasure.

SHEPHERD APPLIED FOR GERM COURSE, SALESMAN STATES

McClintock Inquest Takes New Turn as Further Damaging Testimony Is Introduced.

BY OTIS PEABODY SWIFT.
Chicago, February 27.—The inquest into the death of William McClintock took a new turn Friday, when a salesman for a correspondence school identified William D. Shepherd, foster father of the dead youth and heir to McClintock's fortune as a man who had applied under an assumed name for information regarding the school's courses in bacteriology.

McClintock died of what was diagnosed as typhoid fever, and the inquest was ordered after his friend, Judge Harry Olson, declared his belief that suspicious circumstances surrounded the death.

James P. Marchand, a former salesman for the National University of Applied Sciences, Chicago, took the stand after other witnesses had described the institution as a correspondence school of medicine and pharmacy, the president of which was not a registered physician.

Marchand testified that last summer he was given a letter of inquiry on prices sent to the school by a prospective student, and was instructed to make a follow-up call. He said he visited a lawyer's office in the building where Shepherd's law office is located, and found there a man who admitted the letter, although not under his own name.

The man had discussed the bacteriological courses, but seemed more

Ty Cobb Falls Afoul of Law And Pays $11

Famous Ball Player Arrested After Altercation in Restaurant.

Ty Cobb, the "Georgia peach," Thursday night for a time shed the affectionate appellation of "Ty" and attained to new heights of dignity in an extended experience in his native state, he was formally labeled "Tyrus R. Cobb, 38, Augusta, Ga.," or words to that effect—on the blotter at police headquarters, and the words, "disorderly conduct," were further appended.

The "Peach" didn't blush with pride at scaling the heights of impudence in such ditty fashion. Instead he left the police station in a towering rage with the volubly expressed determination of departing instantly to his home, swamping grounds in Augusta, where ropes are kinder of heart and women don't mind a little judicious "cussin'."

READY TO FINISH MEMORIAL WORK IF SOUTH DESIRES

Declares He Will "Rot in Jail," However, Before Giving Key To His Design To Association.

SCULPTOR ON WAY TO POINT IN NORTH

"Work Will Bear My Name and I Will Not Permit Something Inferior Used," He Says.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Raleigh, N. C., February 27.—Gutson Borglum, dismissed sculptor of the Stone Mountain Memorial to the Confederacy, spent a portion of today in Raleigh and left here tonight at 11 o'clock on a northbound train, according to a story which will appear in the Raleigh News and Observer tomorrow morning.

The article quotes Borglum as stating to its correspondent who interviewed him that: "I'll rot in jail forever before I will give the key to my design of the Confederate Memorial at Stone Mountain to that committee" referring to the executive committee of the Stone Mountain Memorial association which on Monday dismissed the sculptor.

Rides About City.

According to the story the sculptor arrived in Raleigh today by train, called at a friend on the telephone, rode about the city for several hours and then took a northbound train tonight. It declared there was nothing secretive about his movements.

The sculptor is quoted as saying that he "is willing to complete the Stone Mountain memorial if the people of the south wish," but "not under any circumstances work for the committee again." It also quotes him as saying he "could raise the money to finish the job in 60 days."

The sculptor, according to the story, was accompanied by J. T. Tucker, superintendent of operations at Stone Mountain, who also was dismissed by the committee headed by Hollins Randolph of Atlanta, its chairman, the story states.

"There Was No Model."

Borglum, according to the article, denied that he had destroyed the model of the memorial "because there was no model." He stated further, it continues, that the work at Stone Mountain had for weeks been done free-hand and the only model at Stone Mountain was a rough affair which had been discarded.

When he was asked to reach your home in Stone Mountain, Mr. Borglum," he was asked as he was leaving, by the reporter, according to the story.

"I cannot say definitely. There are several matters that will claim my attention before I am able to rejoin my family there."

"I have destroyed no model of the memorial," he continued.

"There is no model. There has been

Boycott of Typical Western Products May Be Expected, Heflin Warns Borah in Senate Debate.

Washington, February 27.—Retaliation by the south for efforts of western states to pass laws discriminating against cottonseed products already is under way, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, declared tonight in the senate.

Steps looking to a boycott of typical western products such as beet sugar may be expected, he predicted, adding that he knew personally that a southern senator had telegraphed his legislature advising the members to resist such a boycott.

Senator Heflin's statement was made when his sixth attempt to obtain consideration of a resolution placing the senate on record as opposing the boycott.

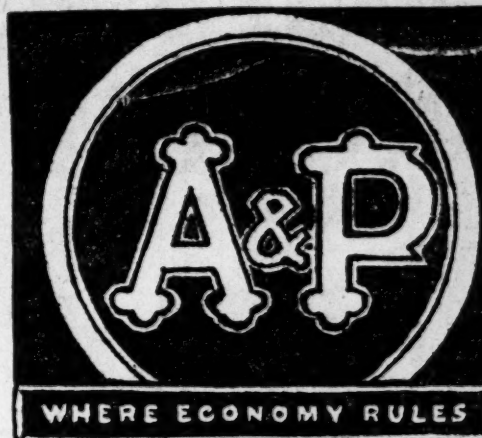

The "Peach" didn't blush with pride at scaling the heights of impudence in such ditty fashion. 10 Members of Alleged Ring Dealing in Whisky Permits Indicted by Jury in Ohio

Entire Investigation Conducted Personally by Mrs. Mabel Walker Wilbrandt, of Washington

Cleveland, Ohio, February 27.—An amazing description of how unscrupulous business men with political pull procured thousands of gallons of whisky from bonded warehouses for bootleg use was heard in the terse contents of an indictment returned Friday by a federal grand jury.

The indictments named Joshua E. Russell, federal prohibition director of Ohio; Merle E. Copeland, his chief clerk, and eight other Ohioans, among whom were brokers, "politicians," an attorney and a millionaire.

All were charged on two counts with conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law.

Several other persons, including Alvin Karpis, Columbus, Ohio, financier and the man mentioned in the Daugherty investigation as having contributed $50,000 to the 1920 republican campaign fund, were named but not indicted, because they traded testimony for immunity.

Those indicted with Russell and Copeland included: William Barnett, senior member of a Columbus, Ohio, investment firm and known as an Ohio "political power"; Armand Garbo, fugitive president of the Armand Drug & Candy Co., Cleveland, Ohio.

Harry Grossberg, Cleveland, broker and attorney for the Armand concern.

Peter Higgins, Youngstown, Ohio, millionaire and former liquor dealer; Charles Fieps, chauffeur for Higgins; Patrick J. Scanlon and Edward Scanlon, his brother; and Frank Eckles, son-in-law of P. J. Scanlon, all of Youngstown.

The indictment charged that the Columbus men named in the indictment manipulated the permit phase of the alleged conspiracy and that the Cleveland and Youngstown men distributed the liquor.

The investment company dealt in the permits, according to the indictment. The Armand Drug & Candy Co. procured the basic whisky permits. Withdrawals were made from the Haynor distillery, Troy, Ohio.

The indictment set forth that "on May 11, 1921, to June 1, 1922, the Armand Drug & Candy Co. was authorized with basic permits to do a wholesale liquor business not exceeding 400 gallons during a quarterly period."

Further, "the demand for whisky for legitimate medicinal use was small compared with the quantity available, while the demand for beverage purposes was great. This situation offered opportunity for great profit."

22,416 Gallons Withdrawn.

The indictment stated that between May 11, 1921, and June 1, 1922, "22,416 gallons of Haynor whisky were withdrawn. Ungerleider, the indictment alleged, received $52,500 from Peter Higgins between November 7, 1921, and April 15, 1922, for whisky delivered. Harry Grossberg paid Garbo $5,000 on two occasions, the jury found, and Ungerleider paid Barnett $15,000 between November 7, 1921, and April 15, 1922.

Grossberg, it was charged, obtained withdrawal permits for 2,250 gallons of whisky which was diverted to Peter Higgins, the Scanlons, Eckles and Fieps for beverage purposes.

60-DAY CONTINUANCE IS DENIED IN OIL SUIT

Cheyenne, Wyo., February 27.—Trial of the government's suit for annulment of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease held by the Mammoth Oil company will proceed on March 9, next, Judge T. Blake Kennedy, of the United States district court, decided today in overruling the government's petition for a continuance.

Yesterday counsel for the government requested a 60-day continuance, contending it was necessary to have the additional time to obtain testimony of H. S. Osler, president of a Canadian corporation, and others, to prove its charges that the Teapot Dome lease was made as a result of collusion between George F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior.

Judge Kennedy, denying the continuance, said that counsel for the government, Adlai Pomeroy and Owen J. Roberts, had failed to comply with the legal rules of procedure and that it did not appear probable that the government would be able to get from Osler and others the evidence which it desired.

Judge Kennedy cited the fact that Osler, when under examination in Canada, had testified that he had no recollection of the distribution of bonds which the government alleges found their way into the possession of Sinclair and then into the possession of Fall.

Liner Rerouted.

London, February 27.—A dispatch to Lloyds from Queenstown this afternoon stated that the Canadian Patriotic liner, which was to sail for New York, had been rerouted to Ireland, this morning, had been rerouted and that it was from Queenstown was standing by.

Son Is Born to Vanderbilt Heiress and British Husband

Above is shown the former Cornelia Vanderbilt, of Baltimore and Asheville, to whom a son was born Friday. Below is her husband, the Hon. John F. W. Cecil, former first secretary of the British embassy in Washington. He is the son of Lord and Lady William Cecil.

Asheville Celebrates His Arrival at Baltimore With Bell-Ringing and Tooting of Whistles.

Baltimore, N. C., February 27.—George Henry Vanderbilt Cecil—all 81-2 pounds of him—caused quite a furor here Friday when he blinked up at the army of attending physicians and lustily assured them that public announcement of his arrival was in order.

Bell ringing was drowned out by whistle tooting when residents of Baltimore learned that an heir to the $40,000,000 estate had been born. There didn't happen to be a fire in town at that particular moment, but the fire department didn't let a little thing like that hinder the tooting of the old siren.

Straining his vocal cords in an effort to be heard above the din, which reverberated through the 350-room Vanderbilt home where the baby was born, Dr. J. M. Lynch, official accoucheur, announced both mother and son were doing well.

George Henry Vanderbilt Cecil's first name, was in honor of the mother's father and the second in honor of her husband's brother, Henry Cecil. The second part also was a compliment to Henry Anderson, of New York, counselor of the Vanderbilt estate.

Cornelia Vanderbilt became the bride of John Francis Amherst Cecil, a cousin of the Cecils of the British parliament, on April 29, 1924. The wedding was a major social event.

The visit of the stork had been expected for some time and a small army of specialists had accumulated at the Vanderbilt home when the event transpired.

Two hundred employees of the 150,000-acre Vanderbilt estate, resembling a carved front of ivory, presented a mammoth clothes basket, containing toys of every description, to the newly arrived. Many of the toys including a miniature story, were hand-made. Pretties for the mother, in the making.

FORMER SENATOR MARTINE DEAD

Miami, Fla., February 27.—James Edgar Martine, former United States senator from New Jersey, and one of the most distinguished sons during the presidency of Woodrow Wilson, died Thursday night in the home of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Cowan, where he was living during his stay here.

According to Mrs. Cowan, he had been ill for the last week, but refused to go to a hospital for treatment. Apoplexy was determined as the cause of his death. Mrs. Cowan was with him during his last moments and said that his last request was to give his sister, Miss Ella Martine, his gold watch.

Only a few intimate friends knew that Senator Martine was in Miami. He came to the city from his home at Plainfield, N. J., on January 3. During his stay in Miami he was rarely seen with anyone, for he preferred to go for long walks alone.

Always Very Reserved.

During his stay in Miami he was always very reserved and apparently did not care to make any friends. Persons who lived in the same house with him said that he was hard to approach and that he never talked about himself or told anyone about his affairs.

He would leave the house alone, would be gone for several hours and return alone and no one knew where he went or what he had done.

Within a week of his death, he seemed to be in fairly good health, and he walked spryly about and frequently tapped his cane sharply as he made a remark in that clear voice which was so often heard in the senate.

Refused to Go to Hospital.

About a week ago, a physician who was caring for the minor ailments advised him to go to a hospital but the former senator declared that he was determined to make his way about until the end.

His death was not announced at once by Mrs. Cowan for fear of the effect it would have on his sister, Miss Ella Martine, who is said to be in ill health. His immediate relatives have been advised of the death and are expected to arrive in Miami Sunday to arrange for the shipment of the body to New Jersey.

MARTINE WAS ACTIVE IN NEW JERSEY POLITICS.

Trenton, N. J., February 27.—Former Senator James Edgar Martine succeeded John Keen as United States senator from New Jersey, March 4, 1911, and thereby had the distinction of being the first senator from an eastern state who obtained his election as a result of a direct vote of the people.

Mr. Martine was elected senator in a joint session of the legislature on January 25, 1911, after an exciting campaign resulting from the demand that the legislature acquiesce in the choice made in the direct primaries of September 15, 1910. Under the direct primary law, Mr. Martine submitted himself as an aspirant for the democratic nomination for United States senator. He received four times as many as his opponents' votes. He served one term.

Several times he was a candidate for representative in congress and for legislative offices in New Jersey, but in each instance he accepted the nomination at the urgent request of the democrats of his district and not as a self-seeker for political honor.

Thousands Cheer Hitler's Return To Head Fascists

Munich, February 27.—Thousands of eager men and women were clubbed away by police when they stormed the entrance to the Burgerbrau, the largest beer cellar in Munich, to hear Adolf Hitler, the fascist leader, make his first speech following his release from jail.

Disappointed fascists fought around the doorway while thunderous cheers rolled out the doors and windows as the tightly-packed crowd prepared to welcome the man who hopes to become the Mussolini of Germany. Hitler has been in jail for practicing some of his fiery precepts. He, with General Ludendorff, was responsible for the abortive "beer cellar revolution" of about a year ago.

Imperial flags decorated the Burgerbrau. When Hitler marched in, surrounded by a group of brown-shirted escorts, the audience "hoed" itself hoarse in a demonstration of approval.

Hitler announced he had resumed the leadership of the entire fascist movement and that it eventually would drive the socialists from power.

7 Women Prisoners Who Escaped Have Been Recaptured

Millidgeville, February 27.—All seven of the white female prisoners who escaped from the state farm here Wednesday night were back in prison this afternoon. Three of them were caught in Jones county yesterday afternoon and this morning Captain J. E. Smith, warden, took the other four in charge in a woods about 14 miles from Macon. They were sitting around a fire when arrested.

The quiet told the warden they were hungry and tired from their walk yesterday and last night and they returned to the state farm with him without trouble.

They made their escape by prying apart the jail bars with an iron bed railing.

Those who escaped were: Ruth Dillon, Fulton county; Louise Smith, Fulton county, sent up for larceny; Lula Kill, Panola county, serving sentence for a misdemeanor; Viola Stansell, Fulton county, serving time for being drunk on the highway; Willie Wimpey, Whitfield county, serving a misdemeanor sentence; Jessie H. Jones, Colquitt county, serving a misdemeanor term; Bula Collier Owens, Crisp county, serving time on a bigamy charge.

He would never accept an appointive office.

He was born in New York city August 25, 1850. Subsequently his parents moved to Plainfield, N. J., and the family homestead has since been a farmhouse there. In recent years, Mr. Martine had combined farming with real estate operations, in which he developed the family estate into a residential district.

Rivers and Harbors Measure Facing Hard Fight in Senate Because of Riders Attached

Cape Cod Canal Proposal and Gooding Amendment on Railroad Rates Draw Hostile Fire.

Washington, February 27.—Carrying more than 50 new proposals added by the senate today, the $41,000,000 rivers and harbors authorization bill tonight appeared to have entered a stormy period in the senate because of attempts to attach to it several vigorously controverted measures as riders.

Senator Fernald, republican, Maine late today proposed an amendment to incorporate in the measure the house bill for government purchase of Cape Cod canal for $11,500,000.

Western senators, led by Senator Gooding, republican, Idaho, immediately launched an attack on this amendment, and in turn proposed to add to the Cape Cod proposal a provision that all authorized projects should be completed within five years. This was done at the request of President Coolidge, who was informed by Director Lord that the proposal would seriously hinder the program of the budget bureau.

The measure was laid aside to-night before Senator Fernald had concluded his argument in behalf of his rider, and will be taken up tomorrow with a lengthy fight in prospect unless both of the riders are disposed of.

Virtually all of the amendments in the house bill proposed by the senate commerce committee were approved, including one to eliminate a provision that all authorized projects should be completed within five years. This was done at the request of President Coolidge, who was informed by Director Lord that the proposal would seriously hinder the program of the budget bureau.

A strong denunciation from Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, who criticized a system which permitted "one man to stand in the way of congress and its power to legislate for the public."

Cites Potomac Bridge.

Remembering that the action was taken in accordance with the policy of economy, Senator Reed called attention to the recent approval by congress and the president of a bill authorizing construction of a $14,000,000 Lincoln Memorial bridge across the Potomac river here.

"While $14,000,000 would make the Mississippi river navigable from St. Paul to New Orleans," he said, "you spend it on an ornamental bridge and hold up the development of our natural resources."

A point of order raised by Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, against the amendment of the bill authorizing construction of a $14,000,000 Lincoln Memorial bridge was overruled by President Cummings.

PERJURY CHARGED IN SWAIN CASE

tion with the solicitor in his office most of the afternoon and it is understood he produced some of the proof which led to the arrest of the two Welch, Kitchen and O'Neal.

A number of persons, whose names could not be learned, called at Solicitor Garrett's office to give information.

The Welch, who are brothers, and who admitted they were friends of the condemned man, testified Tuesday that they saw Johnston draw a revolver before Swain fired the fatal shot. Kitchen said on the stand that he met Johnston at 1 o'clock on the day of the shooting and that the youth threatened Swain in conversation with him. O'Neal swore on the stand that he talked to the slain youth in front of the postoffice at 2:30 o'clock on the same day, saying that the latter had threatened to kill Swain and had shown him a 45 caliber automatic army pistol.

Star to the one picked up on Mulberry street where Johnston met his death. The warrants were issued by Jus-ties of the Peace W. N. Shinholler, of Erie county.

"These men," Solicitor Garrett said tonight, "I am convinced testified falsely in the trial. That the Welch brothers swore to a falsehood is proven absolutely by the material fact that they could not have seen Johnston draw a revolver from where they said they were standing in front of Chapman's pharmacy at 7 o'clock p. m., the night of December 16 when the murder occurred."

Moreover, witnesses can be produced who will swear that the Welch were not even standing in front of Chapman's pharmacy when Johnston was shot.

Boys Accompany Mother to Jail; Forgery Charged

A story, filled with pathos, was told at police station following the arrest early this morning of Mrs. Abbie Lee Melton, 27, charged with forgery.

The warrant was sworn out by T. R. Melton, of Columbus, who claimed his wife had forged his name to a check for $1,200 and had obtained the money.

Mrs. Melton was found in a downtown hotel with her two boys, Robert, 10, and Woodrow, 7. They accompanied her to jail.

She told the matron, Mrs. Heard, and a Constitution reporter that she and her two children had been forced to go without sufficient clothing and had received barely enough food to keep them alive while her husband was in the penitentiary.

The woman was shabbily dressed and the two boys were barefooted and without overcoats. Melton is a carpenter, making an average salary of $25 a week, she said.

The husband arrived in Atlanta Friday night in company with R. H. Smith, a detective with the Georgia state police. Call Officers Sibley and Lowe assisted in the arrest.

Mrs. Melton had $200 on her person when she was taken to police station. She said the money did not belong to her husband, and denied all knowledge of the forgery.

TARBURTON MURDERED, EYE WITNESS SAYS

posted, I was fearful of being discovered, as I knew Mr. Tarbutton and Mr. Rawlings objected to trespassing on their farms.

"As the voices became clearer, and I heard the sound of approaching footsteps, I hid behind a tree. The men advanced to within 50 or 75 yards of me, and while watching the men, I saw Tanner run his gun and shoot Mr. Tarbutton. The gun fell from his hand, and he also dropped to the ground."

"At the time of the shooting, Tarbutton was leading, or in front. Tanner was about 15 or 20 feet behind him. Mr. Rawlings was some paces behind Tanner."

"Following the shooting, I fled, as I was afraid to make my presence known. I was fearful that I, too, would be killed."

"I returned to my home, walking all night, a distance of about 20 miles. I remained at home two days, Wednesday and Thursday, and then wrote a letter to Sheriff Claxton, stating there was a man who saw the actual killing, mailed the letter on the train at Scott, Ga. A few days after the killing, I entered the office of the sheriff in Wrightsville, as my conscience would not permit me to keep the secret any longer, and told him all the details of the scene that I had witnessed, when Tarbutton was killed."

"It was brought out by defense attorneys that Covington several years ago served a three-months' sentence for the chaining of a negro convict. This, Covington admitted, going into the case and explaining it in detail, and saying:

"That is true. I do not care if the world knows it, for I have reformed."

He was on the stand about 30 minutes.

Covington is a farmer, who lives on the eastern side of Johnson county. He has a family. The distance from his home to the Tarbutton farm is estimated at 20 miles. Covington said he walked the entire distance.

Covington's testimony was told in a straightforward manner, and he was not confused by the cross-examination. Even the admission of his prior conviction appeared to impress the courtroom with its frankness and evident sincerity.

Following Covington's testimony, the state closed, and court was adjourned until Saturday morning.

Hal Hooks, negro chauffeur for Rawlings, was among the first witnesses called today. He testified that he was not an eyewitness to the killing, but was a member of the party and heard the shot.

"Mr. Rawlings called me, and when I reached the spot, he said Mr. Tarbutton had slipped and the gun was discharged accidentally," Hooks testified.

Insurance men examined brought out the fact that Tarbutton's life was insured for approximately $200,000, part of this being assigned to the Citizens' Bank of Sandersville, of which Rawlings is a large stockholder. Dr. Hershel Bray and Dr. S. M.

Big Sunday School Rally For Youths Opened Friday

Approximately 324 young people attended the opening session of the second annual Young People's conference of the central section of Atlanta Division which convened at 7 o'clock Friday night in the Sunday school rooms of the Central Presbyterian church.

The conference will continue through the week-end, with sessions at 7 o'clock on Saturday and Sunday. Delegates representing 31 churches of all denominations have registered during the Sunday school rally and conferences conducted at the Atlanta Division under the auspices of the Georgia Sunday school board.

The fourth number of the conference was the opening session of the promotion committee, which was conducted under the personal supervision of Miss Lone Alverson, young people's superintendent of the Georgia Sunday school board.

Interesting Opening.

The conference was presided over by Millard Finch, chairman of the promotion committee. Singing was led by Ben Mitchell.

The theme of "Opportunities for Service" was the keynote of the meeting. The discussion was led by Miss Louise Hays.

The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Mary Belle Russell who used as her subject "Good Evening, We're Glad to See You." Goodwin Black responded.

The principal address of the session was delivered by R. D. Webb, general superintendent of the Sunday school board. He chose as his subject "Who's the Winner?"

Johnson, of Wrightsville, testified they examined the body of Tarbutton, and stated that in their opinion, the hole in the back of his head was made by a gunshot wound fired practically on a level with, and not at an angle from the ground.

The preliminary hearing is before the justices of the peace, John Williams.

It having been announced that the preliminary hearing would be held today, early in the morning people began to swarm into Wrightsville to witness the hearing, and by the time the hearing was over, the streets were jammed with people.

Longworth went over to Madden and they shook hands while the house members cheered. As the republican members, being in the majority, will be able to name their own speaker when the new congress meets, Longworth will be chosen in accordance with the action of the majority caucus.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, was unanimously elected majority floor leader.

After his selection, Longworth made a brief speech, saying he "appreciated the confidence which his colleagues had reposed in him. He complimented his opponent, Madden, on the fairness of the contest, and said they remained close friends throughout. The house is fortunate, Longworth said, in that Madden will continue as chairman of the important appropriations committee, where he has done such able work in carrying out the administration's program."

SHEPHERD APPLIED FOR GERM COURSE

Interested in knowing the cost of installing a laboratory in his home, He did not register for the course, the best of Marchand's knowledge.

Marchand then identified Shepherd, who was present at the inquest, as the man he had interviewed. Shepherd retained the spilling compass with which he has met all attacks since the inquest began.

Authorities who visited the offices of the correspondence school Friday and checked records there were unable to find any trace of the letter of application Marchand described, or any indication that Shepherd had registered at the school.

Carl P. Clarke, another ex-salesman of the school, had testified earlier that other employees told him of recognizing Shepherd's picture as considering tonight, and the Alabama senator warned him "the fight you have started will cost Idaho millions of dollars before long."

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, made the objection which prevented consideration tonight, and the Alabama senator warned him "the fight you have started will cost Idaho millions of dollars before long."

TWO FIRES CAUSE $35,000 DAMAGE

Two fires which broke out about the same time late Friday afternoon caused a loss of approximately $35,000. One fire was at the home of Sig Pappenhimer, 55 West Eleventh street, and the other at 300 Whitehall street, the residence of William Shaddock. Live sparks from the blaze at the latter house also caught the home of F. M. Jones, 304 Whitehall street.

According to the report of fire officials, the flames which destroyed the Pappenhimer home were caused by defective electrical wiring. The cause of the fire at the Whitehall street home has not been determined. It apparently caught in the rear, the flames spreading rapidly to the roof. Sparks, fanned by the wind, caught the home of F. M. Jones, 304 Whitehall street, where the damage was reported as only slight.

So quickly did the blaze spread over the Shaddock home that little time was left in which to save the furnishings, most of which were reported to be a total loss. This damage was estimated at $25,000.

It was estimated that damage to the Pappenhimer home would approximate $25,000—$17,500 to the house and $7,500 to the furnishings.

State Schools Evidence Great Interest in Coming National Oratory Contest

Reports From Numerous High Schools Show Groups of From One to Sixty Entered.

While The Constitution is in daily receipt of scores of letters from prominent educators and other citizens commending the oratorical contest which is being conducted in this state by this paper and the state High School association, and nationally by the American Bar association, the news of prime interest to the high school boys and girls who will take part in the contest is undoubtedly the reports from other high schools all over the state telling of the interest among their own students, and the numbers who are preparing to enter.

Recent reports from a number of these high schools, typical of many others that have been received, are as follows: Superintendent C. C. McCollum of Wrens has six students in the contest. Superintendent C. O. Stubbs of Lawrenceville has three students in the contest. Superintendent F. W. Elarbee of Glennville has one student in the contest. Superintendent J. F. Dickey of Roberta has 12 students in the contest.

60 Girls Enter. Miss Jessie Muse of the Girls High school, Atlanta, has about 60 pupils in the contest. The local prize has not been decided upon as yet. Superintendent J. W. Williams of Braselton has six pupils in the contest. The plans for the local prizes are incomplete. Superintendent C. W. Peacock of Fayetteville has several students in the contest.

Superintendent Lamar Ferguson of Lavonia has five students in the contest. As has been frequently stated, this contest is open to all high school students in Georgia, boys and girls, not over 19 years of age on February 1, last. The orations to be delivered in the contest must be original and must not take more than 10 minutes to deliver.

A series of elimination contests have been arranged. In each series of contests those eligible are the winners in the immediately preceding contest. March 24, or earlier, each high school will hold its own contest to choose the school champion.

April 9 or 10 these school champions will meet in the district contests to decide the district winners. To each of the winners in the 12 districts in the state The Constitution offers a prize of $15 in gold. State Meet April 24.

April 24 the state champion will be selected in a contest at Atlanta from among the 12 district winners. Governor Clifford Walker will preside and The Constitution offers two prizes, of $100 and $20 respectively. May 1 the same contest will be held at Nashville, Tenn., when the zone champion will be chosen from among the state winners of Virginia.

North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee. There are seven zones in the country and the seven zone champions will meet in Washington, D. C., on May 7, to select the national champion for 1925 and to award the seven national prizes offered by the American Bar association, ranging from $2,000 to $300.

Antics of Cho Cho, Famous Health Clown, Seen by Thousands of School Children

FUNNY MAN WINS PLACE IN HEARTS OF KIDDIES AND TEACHES HEALTH LESSON

Cho Cho, the comical health clown brought to this city by the Council of Jewish Women, is seen with five of his little admirers sitting on the steps of Commercial High school. The youngsters are typical of the thousands of children who heard the funny man talk on health while in Atlanta Friday.

BY DICK HAWKINS. There are clowns and clowns—some make you laugh for a moment and then you forget, but Cho Cho, the health clown, made thousands of Atlanta school kiddies laugh Friday who will not forget what Cho Cho said about health.

"How many kiddies here drink milk?" Cho Cho asked of the 1,000 youngsters crowded into Commercial High school auditorium Friday afternoon. Nearly 1,000 little hands went into the air and as many little voices yelled, "I do." At this answer Cho Cho went into funny fits of joy which not only pleased his audience but served to impress on the value of milk drinking for health. All through his talk on what to eat and what not to eat for health, Cho Cho evoked back and forth across the platform in a series of funny antics which kept the children continually laughing, but which served to impress more strongly on the youngsters the value of certain foods for health.

Children Are Attentive. More was accomplished in one-half hour of laugh-provoking talk by the funny man than could be accomplished by a platform orator in hours of speech. They listened to him and believed what he said because he never became ironclad reformer and always allowed the little tots to help him by answering his questions about health, in unison.

Cho Cho had a basket of vegetables on the platform and with these vegetables he carried on his object lesson in proper foods to eat. The turnip, carrot, beet, tomato, potato, lettuce and other green vegetables were greeted with laughs by the comical man and passed upon as foods good for the health of the little tots but the cucumber, pepper, unripe banana, doughnut and many other articles of food were pitched into the imaginary garbage can with many scowls.

"Tell mama not to let you have coffee or tea," Cho Cho said with many a fierce scowl which did more to warn the little folks of the dangers of these drinks than hours of talking could do. With quite a crash, the comical fellow threw the frying pan into the figurative garbage can, condemning it as unfit for use. "Nothing which is cooked in the frying pan is fit to eat," he said, making a terrible face. "Brush your teeth upstairs and down, not back and forth," quoth Cho Cho to the children and with a flourish against not keeping the teeth clean.

Does Great Work. Cho Cho, who was formerly a clown with the Barnum and Bailey circus, is just Cho Cho to the public. He will not even give his right name for publication for fear it might serve to lose for him the friendship of hundreds of thousands of little children. His work is a great work and accomplished in a manner unique and unquestionably effective with the children who surround his character with the halo of humor which always accompanies the clown wherever he goes.

The Council of Jewish Women, Atlanta division, are responsible for bringing Cho Cho to Atlanta and all school children between the ages of five and 12 years were privileged to hear his health talk, according to Mrs. Frank H. Neeley, president, and Mrs. Morris Jacobus, chairman of the child welfare committee of the organization. Owing to the fact that the city auditorium was not available for the meeting two separate gatherings were held Friday, one at the Commercial High school, which was attended by children of the south side schools, and one at the Tech basketball auditorium, which drew 2,000 children from the north side schools attended the meeting at Tech followed the one at Commercial High and scores of children who could not get into the auditorium at Commercial were taken to the north side meeting in big Black and White buses which were donated for the purpose by the Black and White Cab company.

Through the efforts of the Council of Jewish Women Cho Cho was heard by all children free of charge, whereas in most cities he has been in the habit of charging a small admittance fee. All in all, the visit of the famous, funny, health clown, Cho Cho, has been an event in the lives of Atlanta school children and should be much to help general health conditions among school children of the city.

The operation is performed without instruments and entirely with the fingers, four of which Dr. Muncie has insured for $100,000 each. Examination of patients will be held between 9 and 12 o'clock noon today and operations performed in the afternoon from 2 o'clock on.

Held on Mann Act Charge. Valdosta, Ga., February 27.—C. B. Smiley was today placed under a $10,000 bond by United States Commissioner W. E. Perry, at a preliminary hearing, on a charge of violating the Mann act. Smiley is accused of having enticed or induced a young woman from the Habra section to accompany him to another state for immoral purposes. After hearing the evidence Commissioner Perry stated that he would name a temporary bond of $10,000. Being unable to make the bond Smiley is being held as a federal prisoner in the Lowndes county jail.

NEW CARS ARRIVE FOR HIGHLAND LINE

As one of the steps taken to care for the additional passengers expected after February 8, when the ordinance abolishing jitneys becomes effective, seven of the 20 new cars recently purchased by the Georgia Railway and Power company will be added to the Highland avenue Federal Prison line Sunday, while another will be put on the same line Monday, according to announcements made Friday by power company officials.

One of the cars, each of which cost $13,250, will be stationed in front of the Electric and Gas building, 73 Marietta street, all day Saturday and Sunday, and will be open to inspection of the public. That car will be added to the Highland Federal Prison line on Monday. The balance of the new cars will be put on lines yet to be determined as soon as they can be prepared.

Many special features are incorporated in the new cars, all of which are of the latest model. Ends of the vestibules are rounded, and the curved appearance is further accentuated by sliding doors in three hinged panels which adapt themselves to the curved contour of the vestibule. All cars are equipped with improved headlight with canary yellow reflectors which tend to eliminate any objectionable glare.

A special feature is the large door opening and stationary step, closed with a three-panel sliding door. The bottom of this door is protected with a horizontal aluminum guard which covers and protects the step when the door is closed. The edges of the platform floor and step walls are equipped with non-slip aluminum safety treads.

The platform, steps, and adjacent street are illuminated by a battery of five lamps, placed over each door opening and burning only when doors are open. Swivel cross seats are provided, in addition to a longitudinal seat in each corner. New disappearing window guards are other features. Twelve type electric heaters will serve to keep the car warm in cold weather.

The steel side walls are insulated against heat and cold and body loads are largely eliminated by a special process. A number of long, flexible springs are located at logical points to insure smooth, comfortable riding. The weight of the car complete and ready for operation is 35,000 pounds.

NEW TRIAL PLANS MADE FOR SWAIN AFTER CONVICTION

Macon, Ga., February 27.—Attorneys for James W. Swain, sentenced yesterday afternoon to the electric chair on April 23 for the murder of J. Walter Johnston, will begin immediately preparing a motion for a new trial. It is said that the motion will be filed on Monday.

Swain declines to comment on the verdict, but his attorneys have declared it a "travesty on justice and an outrage against the law." They claim that no jury can review the testimony in a four days' trial and reach a verdict in six minutes. The verdict was reached on the first ballot, it is said.

The motion for new trial will be based largely on the discovery of new evidence. It is said.

STREET PAVING CONTRACTS LET

Street paving contract aggregating $41,758.57—the first let by the 1925 street committee of city council—were awarded Friday afternoon. Contracts for five other streets which had been advertised were held up, but three were referred to the street committee members from the wards in which they are located, the other two being held over until the next meeting.

The biggest contract award—that for paving 7,772 square yards on Sells avenue from Ashby to Lawton streets—went to Sam E. Finley. The contract calls for asphalt on rebuilt macadam, with Finley add, and will cost $16,321.20.

Paving Awards.
Following are the other streets to be paved: 1,405 square yards of vibrolithic concrete paving on Fifth street between Williams street and Techwood drive, at $3,034.80, to Jamison and Hollowell; 1,886 square yards of asphalt on a repaired macadam on Argonne avenue between Eighth and Tenth streets, at $2,512.22, to the McDougald Construction company; 1,908 square yards of sheet asphalt on repaired macadam on East Linden street between Jackson and Hunt streets, at $2,477.52, to McDougald Construction company; and 3,910 square yards of asphalt on rebuilt macadam, with Finley add, on Sells avenue from Lawton to Hollderness streets, at $7,311.70, to Sam E. Finley.

Jamison and Hollowell were given contracts for paving the following three streets: 1,221 square yards of vibrolithic concrete on Wabash avenue between Arnold and Randolph streets, at $2,676.30; 1,230 square yards of vibrolithic concrete on Adams street between North Jackson street and North Boulevard, at $2,676.24; and 2,213 square yards of vibrolithic concrete on Fortune street from East avenue to Highland avenue, at $4,777.59.

Contracts Held Up.
Contracts were held up for paving on Ira, Cooper, Waldo and Walnut streets and Oakland avenue.

A request of the board of education that the city pave driveways in front of Girls' High school, between Killian and Hansell streets was referred to the finance committee.

An appropriation to place a gravel composition over the grounds of the William A. Bass Junior High school, however, was voted when each member of the street committee agreed to give $80 from his ward's streets ordinary fund, making a total of $960 for the work.

Councilman John A. White, chairman of the committee, explained that the grounds now are a sea of mud, and that the money will be used for grading the land and covering it with gravel. He added that authorities of the school had been informed that neither the board of education nor the finance committee had been able to find sufficient funds for the work.

New Senate District For Fulton County Planned by League

Frank Weldon, secretary of the Atlanta Taxpayers' league, on Friday announced that an effort will be made at the coming session of the legislature for the creation of a new state senatorial district to embrace only the territory occupied by Fulton county.

Mr. Weldon said that under the present arrangement, whereby Fulton is linked with Henry and Clayton counties as a senatorial district, and under the system of rotation among the three counties used in the election of a state senator, Fulton is practically without representation in the upper house of the assembly four years out of six. "It frequently occurs, also," he said, "that senators from one of the other counties are embarrassed by having to oppose some measure designed to aid Fulton county."

SIMPLE SERVICE MARKS M'CORMICK'S FUNERAL

Chicago, February 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—A simple funeral service of Scripture reading, prayer and song, in the presence of a throng of representatives of government and the varied circles of life touched by the late Senator Medill McCormick, of Illinois, marked the final honors paid him today.

Senators and representatives, his colleagues in both branches of congress, and those from the Illinois legislature, representatives of the high offices of government in Washington and of the diplomatic service of foreign governments, attended the services.

The funeral, marked by the simplicity which the widow, Ruth Hanna McCormick, knew would have been the senator's wish, was held in the Fourth Presbyterian church, where the senator was a member.

No funeral oration was delivered, as it was known the senator would have wanted no eulogy.

The great church was thronged not only by representatives of the nation at state and city governments, but the friends of the McCormick family from Chicago and abroad. There, too, from the lowliest walks in life were those whom Senator McCormick had helped in many ways.

There was a long list of honorary pallbearers, including names of nationally-known men, while the active pallbearers were close friends and relatives of the senator.

State officials in large numbers were present and the Union League and Hamilton club sent large delegations.

Mrs. Robert Sanderson McCormick, the aged mother, ill in Palm Beach, Fla., was unable to attend the funeral.

After the services the casket was placed in a cemetery vault to await removal to the cemetery at Byron, Ill., near the great farm which had been a pride of Senator McCormick all his life.

PERMIT IS GRANTED FOR $300,000 SCHOOL

Permit for the new $300,000 Fulton county high school, now under construction on the site of the former Beall park, corner of Washington street and Woodward avenue, was issued Friday by City Building Inspector C. J. Bowen. Excavation already has been started.

The building, which is to be a two-story reinforced concrete structure, will contain class rooms, laboratories and all features of the most modern schools. Hentz, Reid and Adler, local architects, drew plans for the building, while the contract for its construction has been let to C. T. Nonemaker.

The various committee chairmen are appointed by the incoming president.

The retiring president, Sam N. Freeman, has had a constructive administration and the post is planning intensive activities before the state convention convenes.

Tokio, February 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The government has submitted to the diet the long-contemplated land ownership bill. The measure is reciprocal in principle, forbidding title to nationals, the land laws of whose countries exclude Japanese from ownership.

The bill is an amplification of a dormant law and extends its provisions to the external possessions of Japan.

'Go South, Young Man,' Advice Of Arthur 'Golden Rule' Nash

"If Horace Greeley were living today, he would say, 'Go south, young man,'"

This was the assertion here Thursday of Arthur Nash, Cincinnati clothing manufacturer and known all over the world as "Golden Rule" Nash, as he stood at the door of his private car, "Commonwealth," in which he has been spending the past two weeks in Florida. He had just completed a tour of Atlanta as guest of the Atlanta Convention and Tourist bureau, and he spoke with a deep tone of sincerity.

Mr. Nash stopped in Atlanta at the invitation of the bureau, and spent the greater part of the limited time he had here looking over the city's residential sections. The tour of the city took him through David Hills section, Emory university, Ansley Park, Fares Ferry road and ended with a trip to Grant park and the cyclorama, which Mr. Nash said he would not have missed seeing for anything.

So impressed was the Cincinnati with Atlanta's growth and future possibilities that he authorized the statement as he was leaving the city that in all his travels he had seen only two southern cities that he would consider as his home, Atlanta being one of them. He admitted that Atlanta had the edge on the other city in that it commanded more nearly the center of the stage in a commercial and transportation way.

Mr. Nash was enthusiastic about Atlanta's beautiful homes. He declared Emory university to be a marvel of beauty, and he admired the substantial character of Atlanta's banking and business institutions. He remarked on the fact that he had spent two weeks in Florida and had not been called on by a real estate agent, although he was not traveling incognito.

Mr. Nash is perhaps one of the best-known manufacturers in America. He is head of the Arthur Nash company and is famous for his plan of operating his huge enterprises on the "golden rule" plan. Seen by newspaper men in Atlanta Thursday, he was asked what led him to adopt this policy in industry. His pleasant blue eyes flashed as he answered without a moment's hesitation, "Because it's right."

"People generally treat us as we treat them, do they not?" he added. "So from a purely selfish standpoint, it pays to treat the other fellow well."

Operating strictly on the "golden rule" plan of cooperation with employees, during the six years from 1919 to 1924 in which he has been making clothing for men, his business has grown from a total of $325,000 in 1919 to $9,245,000 in 1924.

He said that while fully one-half of the concerns in his line had either liquidated or gone into bankruptcy, the "golden rule" policy has brought his establishment from the smallest to by far the largest house of its kind in the country. There are 47 branch stores of the Nash company located in the various large cities of the country, Atlanta being one of those.

Accompanying Mr. Nash were his wife and daughter and a party of six grandchildren.

ARTHUR (Golden Rule) NASH.

Friends from Cincinnati, which included Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Mahine and Mrs. May Cornell Stober, Mr. Mahine is the sales manager of the Nash company and he, too, was very enthusiastic about Atlanta's residential sections.

The party left Atlanta over the Louisville and Nashville railroad Thursday afternoon at 4:15 for Cincinnati.

Richardson Funeral Held From St. Mark's Church on Friday

Funeral services for Alonzo Richardson, prominent Atlanta business man, who died Thursday at the residence, 682 West Peachtree street, were held Friday afternoon from St. Mark's Methodist church, Dr. J. B. Mitchell, Dr. Wallace Rogers and Rev. H. C. Christian officiating. Interment was made in West View cemetery, with Barclay & Brandon in charge.

Pallbearers were S. F. Boykin, Major R. J. Guinn, J. T. Rose, J. C. McCrory, Colonel William Lawson Peel, Dr. Thomas Crenshaw, Oscar Palmour and Joseph A. McCord. Stewards of the church served as honorary pallbearers.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Zella Richmond; a daughter, Mrs. J. Coleman Brown; three sons, Edward, Captain Levey Richardson, of Cleveland, Ohio, and six grandchildren.

According to the predictions of C. F. von Herrmann, in charge of the local office of the U. S. weather bureau, the month of February will close Saturday still cold and without any immediate return of warm weather in sight on the weather map.

And, despite the belief of iconoclasts to the contrary, Mr. von Herrmann is correct in his predictions about five times out of six.

The temperature early Saturday morning is expected to be about 32 degrees. Friday, the early morning reading showed 31 degrees and the highest during the day was 42 during the afternoon. At noon it was 30 degrees. Similar weather is due today, says the meteorological prophet.

February, which ends at midnight tonight, has been remarkable for its warmth and dryness, according to the figures at the weather office. Up to Friday afternoon the mean temperature for the month was 51.5 degrees, which is 8 degrees higher than the average for February and the highest since February 1890, when the mean for that month was 54.8 degrees.

The excessive dryness of the month just closing is seen when the total rainfall is found to be 1.69 inches, whereas the average February rainfall for the past 50 years is 4.05 inches, practically three times the amount we have had this year.

The Washington forecast for today follows:

"Cloudy Saturday, possibly showers in south portions; Sunday cloudy, probably showers and slightly warmer in north and central portions."

BASEBALL KING, FREED, FACES PERJURY CHARGE

New York, February 27.—The troubles of Charles A. Stoneham growing out of his activities in the stock market, did not end today when a federal jury acquitted him of charges of conspiracy to defraud investors through use of the mails. The baseball magnate stands under a second federal indictment alleging perjury, and he has been made defendant in numerous suits brought by customers of his now defunct brokerage firm.

Freed with his codefendants, Ross Robertson and Elmore D. Dier, Stoneham said the case was persecution.

The government charged that Stoneham and others transferred nearly $5,000,000 in customers accounts to E. D. Dier & Co., when they knew the affairs of the latter firm were in bad condition.

More than a month and a half was required to try the case. The second indictment against Stoneham, who is principal owner of the New York Globe, charges perjury in connection with his relations with the defunct bucket shop of Edward M. Fuller & Co.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR VICTIM OF AUTO

Funeral services for J. Ralph Elliott, 14, who was killed Thursday by a speeding automobile in Hills park, will be conducted from the residence, on Carroll avenue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Interment at West View with Harry G. Poole in charge.

In addition to his father and mother, two brothers, Henry and Roy Elliott, and two sisters, Mrs. J. G. Scott and Miss Evelyn Elliott, survive him.

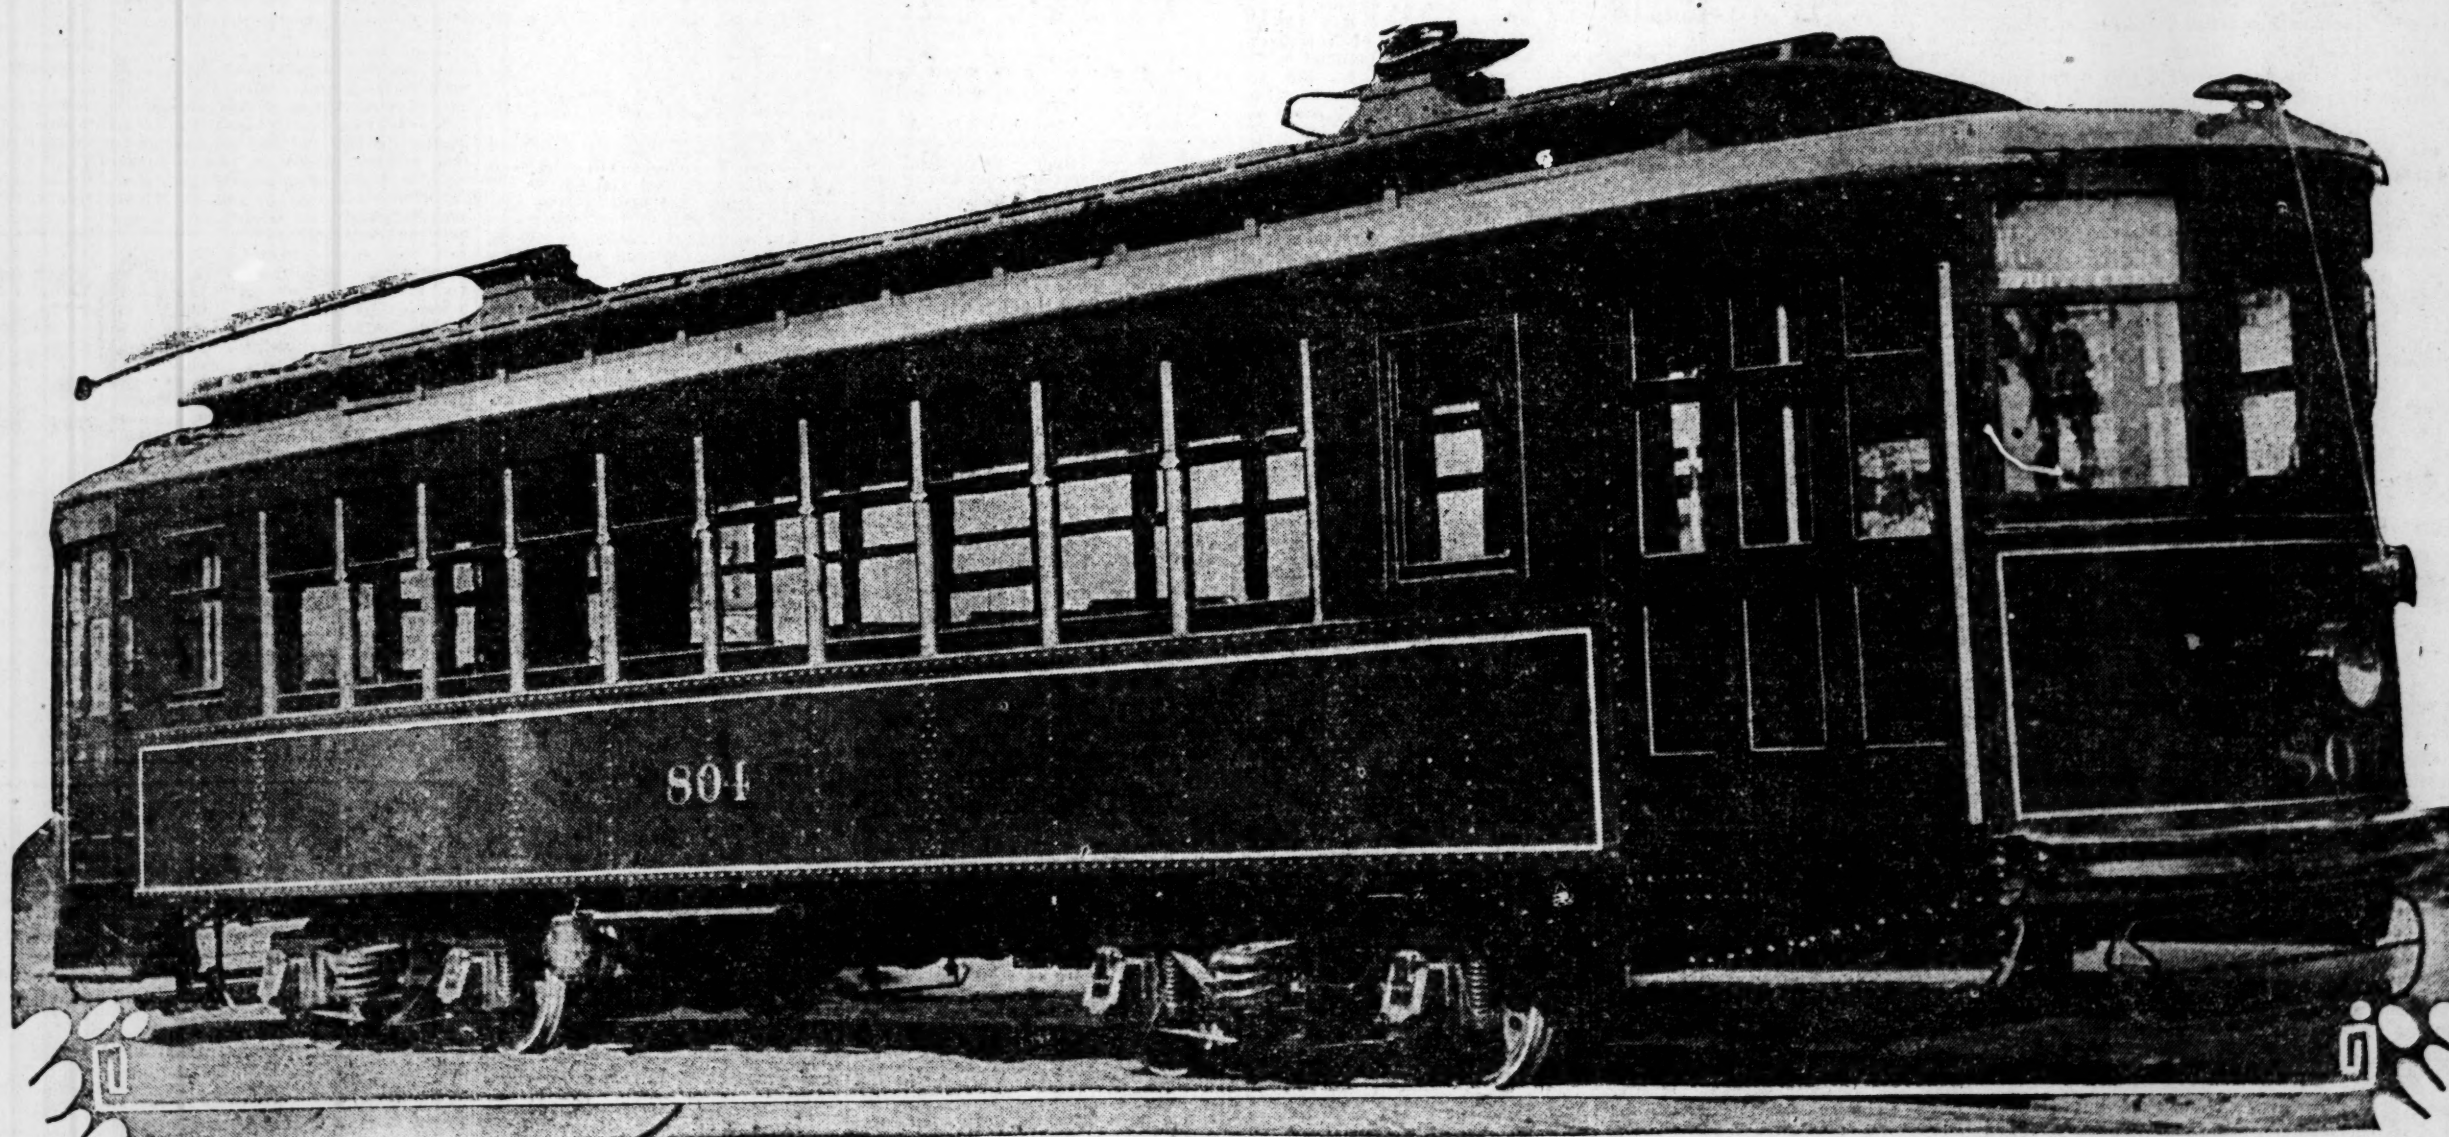

The dragnet spread by Fulton county and Atlanta police, in which DeKalb and Cobb county officials have been asked to help, has failed to bring about the apprehension of the occupants of the machine that killed the youth.

According to information supplied by J. D. Morris, of 49 Euclid terrace, who witnessed the accident, a man on the driver's seat was hanging over the side of the car as though ill or intoxicated.

THE fare collected from you on this car will not be merely for your street car ride. Under direction of the City Government, every fare includes paving charges, gross receipt taxes and bridge rentals, and to that extent relieves the taxpayers who do not use the street cars and also lessens the amount available for transportation service.

ONE of Atlanta's twenty new street cars will be open for your inspection Saturday and Sunday in front of the Electric & Gas Building, 75 Marietta Street. Look it over and see how you like it. All twenty of the new cars, bought at a cost of $13,250.00 each, or a total of $265,000.00, will go into service immediately.

Time money rates also displayed a firmer trend, 60 to 62 percent being quoted at 3-3-4 to 4 instead of 3-3-4 flat and the longer maturities at 4 to 4-1-4 percent. Prime commercial paper commanded 3-3-4 per cent.

Demand sterling, which had slipped to 11.8s yesterday to $4.74 3-8 following the announcement of the higher bank rate, recovered its loss today on receipt of London cables predicting an increase in the Bank of England rate next week. French francs yielded slightly to 5.15 cents on reports that the circulation of the Bank of France was close to the statutory limits of forty-one billion francs. Other changes were largely nominal.

The outcome ranged from 15c decline to 15c advance.

Each bulge in wheat prices carried the market into fresh high levels, then the day's topmost point being reached shortly before the close. As many as five different counts of wheat were reported. The loss 40 to 60 per cent of wheat, owing to winter killing. From Manhattan, Kansas, to Hays, Kansas, and north to the Platte river, several million acres of wheat were said to have failed to appear above ground largely as a result of insufficient moisture. Complaints of lack of rain in Texas were also current and adverse news regarding the wheat crop of India attracted considerable notice in addition. The fact that the wheat coming in from that country appeared to be going into the July delivery and that month led the advance much of the time today. In the end, however, the September delivery showed the greatest net gain. Rumors of the Liverpool market sympathizing in full with the advance in rates here had a great deal to do with the setbacks, and particularly so at the finish.

Corn averaged higher in price, sympathizing with wheat strength. The market, however, was materially affected by the wide discounts necessary to dispose of low-grade corn and corn having much moisture. Oats were rather dull.

Packers' selling tended to nullify advances in provisions.

H. C. COUCH, PROMOTED BY SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Promotion of Hugh C. Couch, of College Park, to be assistant to the vice president of the Southern rail

Mr. Couch is a new one, its creation emphasizing the growing importance of Atlanta as one of the principal points served by the Southern railway, and being also a tribute to the efficient service rendered by Mr. Couch as chief clerk.

Mr. Couch is a son of the late Dr. George D. Couch and is a native of Baker county, but has spent the greater part of his life in Fulton county. He was recently elected mayor of College Park and is vice president of the Exchange club, of Atlanta. He spent his boyhood in Hapeville and attended the public and high schools of Fulton county. After several years' experience with other railroads, Mr. Couch became secretary to the freight traffic manager of the Southern in June, 1917, and two years later was made chief clerk to the vice president at Atlanta.

The sale of seats for the recital by Mischa Elman, the noted violinist, will open this morning at the store of the Phillips & Crew Piano Company, continuing through Tuesday.

Mr. Elman's recital is to be given Tuesday night at Wesley Memorial Auditorium, and it promises to draw a large audience. The Russian-American violinist has not visited Atlanta in several seasons.

The recital will close the artists' series of concerts conducted by Russell Bridges.

HALE AND HEARTY, HE DRINKS 24 CUPS OF COFFEE DAILY

Newark, N. J., February 27.—Twenty-four cups of coffee a day keep the doctor away, says Joseph Pelet, 72, who today laid claim to the coffee-drinking championship recently claimed by a Bradley Beach man with a record of 15 cups a day. Pelet says he daily drinks six quarts of coffee, the equivalent of 24 cups. He drinks four quarts during his night's work as watchman in an automobile battery shop and declared he would get sick if he did not have it. He claims it keeps his mind clear, his nerves alive and keeps him awake during his long shift. Pelet admitted he did not sleep much in the day time, either, as the other two quarts keeps him awake, but he has the reputation of excellent health for his years.

Ann Arbor, Mich., February 27.—The destinies of the University of Michigan, for four years under the direction of Dr. Marion L. Burton, who died last week, today were in the hands of Dean Alfred H. Lloyd, of the graduate school, who last night was named by the board of regents to be acting president for the remainder of the present school year.

Dr. Lloyd has been on the staff of the university since 1891, beginning as instructor. Dean Lloyd would make no announcement of his plans today.

BEAUTY CHATS

SOME "TIPS."

I know one woman who likes perfumed hair. Goodness knows why, but she does. I've no doubt she has been reading too many of the new and very sentimental magazines, on the covers of which a man is always bending over kissing a woman's lips or hands or hair, or in some way showing his adoration. When I said something about the fresh, sweet odor hair naturally has if it is brushed and aired and shampooed properly she was quite indignant and answered she meant real fragrance.

I found she achieved it by sewing tiny sachet bags into the linings of her hats. Now, if you really want highly perfumed hair, that's not a bad way to acquire it, so I give you the "tip" as she gave it to me. If you use toilet water or cologne on the hair itself, you may dry it and hurt it. Cologne used on the skin around the hair passes off rapidly, the sachet odor is more lasting and harmless.

Here are some other "tips" about perfume. The most subtle and delicate fragrances can be bought in sachet form, and bought more cheaply than in colognes or toilet water. A little sachet mixed with plain corn starch gives a delicious, very cheap, and very healthy bath powder, the fragrance of which will stay on your skin all day.

Sachet bags sewed in the linings or pockets of your coats will give your clothes the faint, sweet elusive odor that most women desire. Sachet bags kept in wardrobe drawers where clothes are laid, or sachet sprinkled on cotton used to pad dress hangers, will do the same.

Most women love perfumes. Personally, one special odor, no matter how expensive, hooks me to itself for a few days, then the bother is to get all ones clothes free of it. Long ago I gave up using any of it and saved money. But I'm an exception, most people like perfumes.

A. B.—As cocoa butter is such a heavy oil, it should not be used for massaging either the face or neck. There is nothing better for massaging other parts of the body. When the face is thin and the body appears to be well nourished it usually indicates a run down condition. You may help it somewhat by massaging with olive oil or a good cream, but you will improve much faster if you have the doctor prescribe for you.

A Reader—An oily scalp comes from poor elimination, so you will have to trace it to its source in your system. You can keep your hair clear of it by rubbing it out with soft towels.

Marcella V.—The oil-producing glands are found over all the skin except in the soles and palms. They are nearer the surface than the perspiratory glands. Their function is to lubricate the skin and keep it soft, and to protect the body from moisture.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or critical reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.

Miss Boardman Will Visit Mrs. Arkwright at 'Pinebloom'

Miss Mabel T. Boardman will arrive in Atlanta Monday morning from Washington, D. C., and will visit Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright at "Pinebloom," her home in Druid Hills, for several days.

Miss Boardman is chairman of the national volunteer service committee of the American Red Cross, which was created about a year ago by the central committee of the national organization. Only 15 prominent women from different sections of the country were chosen to serve on this volunteer service committee, and Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright was appointed from the southern district by John Burton Payne, president of the central committee of the American Red Cross.

Volunteer service has been recognized as a great inspiration and an essential requisite in directing the work of the various chapters.

Miss Boardman is one of the foremost of American women, having been a leader in Red Cross work for many years. She is a very remarkable woman, and her visit in Atlanta will mark the first lap on a nationwide trip, giving her time, and paying her expenses to visit the various Red Cross chapters.

Miss Marion Van Dyke, who was a volunteer worker in the Atlanta Red Cross chapter, and is now secretary of the organization, and Mrs. Victor Cluis, by virtue of her outstanding and splendid work for the chapter during the World War, are still in active service, and are engaged in promoting the work.

Attends School With Atlanta

A very interesting coincidence in connection with the appearance here on Monday of Miss Mabel Boardman, national secretary of the Red Cross, is the fact that Miss Boardman is a former schoolmate of Mrs. Albert Thornton, who herself is one of the most active members of the executive board of the Atlanta chapter. These two prominent women attended together the private school of Madame Le Febvre, which at the time was the most fashionable school in the country for young society women.

Mrs. Thornton will be one of the leaders in entertaining Miss Boardman during her stay in Atlanta. Besides assisting her in receiving after her talk, in company with the other women of the executive board Mrs. Thornton will be one of the hostesses at a lovely luncheon to be tendered Miss Boardman on Monday.

Miss Boardman, who is the only woman member of the executive board of the National Red Cross, is being brought to Atlanta by the local chapter. She will address the women of Atlanta on Monday afternoon, March 2 at 3 o'clock in the ballroom of the Biltmore hotel. Her subject will be "Volunteer Service in Time of Peace," and she will tell also of the progress that is being made in erecting a second building for the National Red Cross. This new structure will be dedicated to the women workers of the World War, just as the original building is a memorial to the women of the War Between the States.

Writers' Club Honors Mrs. John Montgomery.

Mrs. John Montgomery was the guest of the Atlanta Writers' club Friday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the club at Ansley hotel.

Mrs. James B. Nevin presided and after the routine of business, Mrs. Montgomery was introduced to the members of the club as one "who had arrived" and yet remained sweet and unspoiled by success and was intensely interested in those who were beginning to write.

Mrs. Montgomery gave a formal and charming talk to the writing folk present and read some of her poems.

Atlanta Postal Workers To Get $192,000 Raises

Approximately $192,000 in additional salaries will be distributed among postal employees of Atlanta if President Coolidge signs the bill passed by congress providing general increases for postal employees, according to figures compiled by Postmaster Edwin K. Large.

In the Atlanta postoffice there are 630 employees, and the average increase under the bill will amount to about $300 a year for each employee. In Georgia there are about 7,000 employees and their increases will amount to about $2,000,000.

RECEIVER IS ASKED FOR 'LIFE' COMPANY

Trenton, N. J., February 27.—Appointment of a receiver for the Life Publishing company, publishers of "Life," is asked in a chancery suit filed by Nina Leroy Miller, of New York, who claims to hold 126 shares in the company. It is charged that the business, though solvent, is being operated at a loss.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS STATE COOPERATIVES

In a unanimous decision handed down Friday morning the Georgia supreme court upheld that act of the Georgia legislature authorizing farmers to create cooperative marketing associations and to fix liquidating damages and require members to pay costs.

This decision is of wide importance to the farmers of the state, inasmuch as it upholds the legality of the Georgia Cane Growers' Cooperative association and many other similar organizations in the state.

The case in which the decision was rendered was that of the Georgia Cane Growers' Cooperative association against Guy Harrell, a Grady county cane grower, who was sued for $40 alleged commissions due the association on syrup he was charged with selling outside the organization after pooling his crop. Harrell, in his defense, attacked the constitutionality of the act authorizing organization of cooperative marketing associations.

The Georgia Cotton Growers' Cooperative association intervened in the action, and was represented before the supreme court by its counsel, Bryan & Middlebrooks. The cane grower association was represented by S. P. Cain, of Cairo and Hollins N. Randolph, of Atlanta, while Harrell was represented by Ira Carlisle, of Cairo. The case was regarded as a test case of the right to form cooperative associations for marketing of farm products by the farmers, and of the authority of the association to take action against "dumpers."

Chief Justice R. B. Russell and Presiding Justice Marcus W. Beck wrote additional opinions, concurring specially in the opinion of the court. It is most unusual for two of the justices to write special concurrences on the same case. Commenting on a charge that the cooperative marketing act is class legislation, Chief Justice Russell said:

"It is within the power of the Georgia general assembly to act upon varying conditions affecting public welfare in conformity with changing economic conditions and economic conditions may, of themselves, justify or compel the legislature to classify farmers as a class requiring beneficial legislation."

Rogers' Stores System Outlined by Huddleston At Atlanta Club Lunch

"Operation of the L. W. Rogers chain stores" was the subject of address Friday by Pre. Huddleston, advertising manager of the organization, to members of the Greater Atlanta club at luncheon in the chamber building.

C. Leighton Shepard, of Fort Valley, chairman of the annual Peach festival staged by that city, was an honor guest. He made a brief address, relating plans for the big event in Fort Valley, and expressing a welcome to the membership of the club to attend the frolic. "I firmly believe that the festival this year will be an epoch-making success and Fort Valley is making plans to take care of all visitors," he said.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT.

XVIII—ANOTHER TANGLE.

It was quite late when I got home that night. After we finished our visit to Jordan's yacht Nick wanted me to go somewhere and have supper and dance a while with him, so it was well after midnight when at last I reached our apartment.

Virginia and Frank Atwood were sitting in the livingroom, waiting for me.

"Where have you been?" demanded Virginia. Ordinarily I would have been annoyed at her tone, but she had looked so sad as she sat there when I first came in that I couldn't be cross with her.

"Oh, just out with Nick," I answered, too busy over concerning the other facts to think of camouflaging that one.

"But I've asked you not to go with him; I don't approve," Virginia exclaimed, with a glance at Frank.

"Really, Nancy—"

"Oh, don't scold her," Atwood interrupted. "We'd hoped you'd come early enough to go out to supper with us at the White Horse Tavern," he went on, to me. "Your mother hasn't been there yet and I thought she'd enjoy it."

There was something about that remark that sounded almost paternal. He might have been my father. Virginia noticed it, too. She glanced up at him sharply, and her face looked less sad.

"Well, let's do it tomorrow night," I urged. "That's just as good a time, isn't it? I'd love to go. How nice of you to think of taking us there?"

I wanted to be sure of her being included in the invitation. If only he wouldn't fancy her instead of me! Once more I was arranging other people's love affairs—but then, this time they were mine, too!

Virginia went out to our little kitchenette and got supper, while I set the table and told Frank Atwood how clever she was. As a matter of fact, Virginia loathed cooking, but I knew that he liked good food—and besides, she is a good cook when she wants to be.

He went down to his own apartment finally, delighted with the way the evening had turned out, and I went to my own room, longing to tumble into bed and try to straighten out my thoughts. But Virginia followed me, and instead of my sitting up while she brushed my hair and saw to it that everything was all right, I realized that she wanted to know all about where I had been, and to find out if she could just how much I liked Nick.

"I can't see why you persist on going around with that young fellow when every one is sure to talk about you, and think that his wife divorced him just because of you," she said fretfully.

"But I didn't even know him before she got a divorce," I protested.

"People won't believe that. If we had more money gossip wouldn't hurt you at all—in fact, it's likely to be rather a good thing for a girl, nowadays, under some circumstances," she went on. "But you simply mustn't be talked about."

"Well, I shan't be," I'd noticed a letter from Jim on my dressing table, and was wishing she'd leave me alone so that I could read it. "Not while I have you and Frank Atwood to look after me," I couldn't resist adding.

Virginia actually blushed.

"Mr. Atwood is very much interested in you," she said.

"Not half so much as he is interested in you," I answered. "Really, Virginia, I never knew you to be so blind before. You're the one who's the attraction to him—I'm not in it at all."

"Men of his age always like younger women," she protested.

"But you're barely forty, and look younger," I answered. "Face the music, Virginia. You can't tell me that that man sat here all evening just because he thought I'd be home later."

She went to her own room very cool after that—I knew she would. A woman always wants to be alone with the thought of a new love affair when it first comes to her. I curled up in bed with all the lights out but the one on the table beside me, with Jim's letter in my hand.

All the night noise of the city came to me—the hoisting of tugs on the river, the rumble of trucks in the street, the hammering and chopping made by the men who were shoveling snow and breaking up the ice that covered the sidewalks. It had been rainy all day, following a hard snowstorm of the day before, and an army of men would work all night, making the city streets passable.

I thought of all that—and of how far away my husband was, in a land of sunshine. What was I really doing there? Would his letter to me? It did—at least partly.

"Living conditions here aren't all what they might be," he wrote. "But I'm in luck. The Katons have drawn a very decent house, and Claire urges that I live with them. Says it's as easy to look after two men as one, and will keep her from getting lazy. So I've taken over two of their rooms, and really feel that I have a home again."

I could see Claire Eaton, purring like a contented kitten as she supervised the making of that arrangement. How long would it be before Jim wrote, wanting to break completely with me, I asked myself. (Copyright, 1925, by The Constitution.)

Oh, no, I wouldn't throw away that little bit of corn. It will only take a few minutes to make a batter, put in the corn and fry it in Snowdrift. It makes delicious fritters.

"Road of Remembrance" Planted By College Park Woman's Club

The tree planting of Wednesday afternoon, sponsored by College Park Woman's club, proved to be one of the most beautiful occasions in the club's history. The enterprise was a matter of general civic interest and was promoted by Mrs. Howard Stakely and Mrs. W. C. Mizelle, the efficient and progressive chairmen of the departments of forestry and good roads.

Mrs. Howard Stakely was chairman for the afternoon's program. In appropriate words Mrs. Stakely introduced Miss Hattie Rainwater, science supervisor of the Atlanta schools. Miss Rainwater charmed her audience by telling the necessity for preserving the birds if the trees were to be preserved. Miss Mary Joe Merritt, a reader of great charm, rendered most acceptably a group of nature poems.

Distinguished visitors adding interest to the program with short impressive talks were: Mrs. A. P. Brantley, president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. H. G. Hastings, president of the fifth district federation; and Mrs. Woods White, first president of the College Park club.

By permission of C. A. Wickham, president of the Atlanta & West Point railroad, the club planted its "road of remembrance" along the highway running through the center of the town. Mr. Wickham was most sympathetic in his inclination toward this project and expressed his hearty commendation of the civic pride which prompted the undertaking.

Crepe Myrtle Trees.
One hundred and twenty-five crepe myrtle trees, alternating with the same number of dogwood trees, were planted at intervals of approximately 20 feet, thus providing two seasons of flowering. Snowy white blossoms will announce the advent of spring, while summer will bring glorious display of gorgeous bloom from the "memory trees," the crepe myrtles.

Following the program, the club adjourned to the nearby park where the tree planting ceremony, presided over by Mrs. Stakely and Mrs. Mizelle, took place around a myrtle planted and named in honor of the president, Mrs. L. O. Freeman, who by her splendid initiative and untiring energy has led the club into paths of distinctive accomplishment. Close by another tree was planted in honor of Mrs. B. D. Gray and bearing her name. Mrs. Gray is chairman of forestry for the fifth district, a former president of the College Park

PERUVIAN ALFALFA THRIVES AT COLLEGE

J. H. King, alfalfa specialist from Arizona, and president of the Farm Bureau Marketing association, of Yuma, who has been in Georgia for the past week for the purpose of introducing the Harry Peruvian variety of alfalfa in this state, Tuesday visited the State College of Agriculture at Athens, where he inspected the plantings of this variety of alfalfa. Mr. King was accompanied by Fred T. Bridges, assistant commissioner of agriculture, and the Georgia department of agriculture.

The Harry Peruvian variety of alfalfa showed a considerably better growth than any other of the varieties planted at Athens, it was reported after the visit.

Referring to the much greater yield possible with this seed, Mr. Bridges said:

"The United States imports a great amount of alfalfa seed each year, and to our not raising enough domestic seed to supply the demand, and a great many failures in raising alfalfa are due to the planter receiving inferior seed."

"Through the efforts of our agricultural college and experimental station, we have made great headway within the last few years in determining the right kind of seed for the different sections of the country. We have also learned the sections in the United States where alfalfa seed can best be produced. With the idea of putting the right seed in the right place, Mr. King has been putting on an educational campaign in the south and feels that with the cooperation of people here who are interested in the farmers' problems that alfalfa can be successfully produced and that feed for the dairy and other stock can be economically produced here, and the money that is now being paid out to other states may be kept at home. We feel that the department is justified in inducing the planting of Harry Peruvian alfalfa in this section and will lend our efforts to the getting of a large acreage planted."

BILLIE BURKE INJURED AS CAR HITS TAXICAB

West Palm Beach, Fla., February 27.—Billie Burke, the darling of the American stage, was resting comfortably at a late hour today, following the automobile collision in which she had the misfortune to be in this morning.

Mrs. Ziegfeld sustained many bruises, none of which, however, was serious, and she was immediately sent to bed by her physicians. The shock proved too much for the famous wife of the famous beauty expert, and soon beloved Billie Burke was sleeping soundly in her hostess' home. She has been in Palm Beach for about two weeks.

Mrs. Gurnee Munn sustained a broken or fractured collar bone, it was stated at the residence. It is not believed, however, that Mrs. Munn has sustained serious injuries, as first thought.

THE GUMPS—THE CHARACTER READER

Burned Evidence

By MRS. WILSON WOODROW

SYNOPSIS

The story is being told by young Dandridge, junior member of a New York firm of lawyers. Old Jerome Foddick, one of the richest clients of the firm, invites Dandridge to lunch at his house. The young lawyer is interested in the old man's granddaughter, Sara, a beautiful young society woman, who is Foddick's heir. Foddick tells Dandridge that Sara's father, his only son, had spent many years in South America, where he died. After his death a South American woman appeared at the Foddick home with baby Sara, whose mother, the nurse said, had died soon after the baby's father. Foddick had investigated the woman's story and found it to be true.

After luncheon Madam Adelbron, a famous psychic, calls on Foddick and tells him she had been an intimate friend of Sara's mother, in Buenos Aires when Sara was an infant and that when she had had to leave the city on a theatrical tour she had left with Sara's mother all her jewels and a large sum of money. When she returned to Buenos Aires Foddick's daughter was dead and her property had disappeared. She has just succeeded in tracing them, and she demands that Jerome Foddick return her jewels and the money with interest. A few days later the old man is found dead in his automobile. The case is in the hands of Police Inspector Curran. Dandridge tells him about Madam Adelbron's demands on Foddick, and informs him that the medium had carried with her a list of jewels that had belonged to Sara's mother and written in the latter's handwriting, identical to a list in Sara's possession. Before Dandridge is able to have the jewels, Curran and Dandridge hasten over to the Foddick house and find that the letters are missing. The inspector questions Herbert, curator of the Foddick museum, and the old man's secretary, Miss O'Connor. They both have good alibis. Herbert claims that he spent the hours between 6 and 11 at the house of Professor Marston, but the night watchman shatters his alibi by reporting to Curran that he saw him go into the house about 8 o'clock and come out a little after 9:30. Herbert sticks to his alibi, but admits that he allowed a Professor Quigley, known to him slightly, to remain in the museum alone during the afternoon.

Sara Foddick contrives to have Madam Adelbron invited to give readings at a bazaar for one of her charities. She also arranges to have a crystal gazer present. Curran attends the bazaar, and Adelbron gives him a reading without recognizing him. He sits her professional jealousy by praising the work of the unknown crystal gazer, and she decides to visit the latter's tent. The crystal gazer is Sara, but Adelbron fails to recognize her.

Adelbron, a famous criminal lawyer of New York, is Adelbron's attorney. He invites Dandridge to dinner at his apartment.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.
THE GAME PROGRESSES.

During the course of the dinner there was not a word spoken, a suggestion thrown out, that Achison had a deeper reason for inviting me than the mere desire for my companionship.

The sword was descending.

It was not until coffee and some rare old brandy were served in the library, and we had lighted our after dinner cigarettes, that the nigger peeped from the woodpile.

Achison lounged in an easy chair, stroking the great Persian chinchilla cat on his knees as he talked. He finished a sentence, and then ran his hand over his thick, iron gray hair with a regretful sigh.

"Too bad," he said, "Too bad! Dandridge, for an hour and a half you have so deadened the wheels of the everlasting grind, that I was able to forget the beastly treadmill in the background. But my Puritan conscience is alert to it, I heard the roll and whirr of the machinery again, reminding me to ask you if you know that this European psychic, Madam Adelbron, has retained me to help her recover certain jewels and moneys which she claims your client, Miss Sara Foddick, is illegally withholding from her."

"I wish you would tell Miss Foddick that it is with the greatest reluctance I took the case; but," in humorous self-deprecation—"Madam Adelbron is a persistent and tempestuous lady. And, let me confess the worst, she offered me a large retainer; and I was weak, my dear Dandridge, weak. The Venable sage dancing before my eyes sapped my powers of resistance. There is a tavern table in that collection, and a—but I will say no more. Never take up a day, my boy, thinking it will be a harmless recreation, an amusing diversion for your idle hours. It grows like the jinn of the bottle until it becomes the most pitiless of tyrants, and you find yourself, before you know it, the mere slave of its whims."

"Of course," with one of his mellow laughs, "I might suggest that unless I had accepted Madam Adelbron's retainer, the case might fall into less scrupulous hands; but I cannot beguile either you or Miss Foddick into believing that. No; I shall have to confess that I yielded to my besetting sin. This collecting lust is worse than drink, Dandridge. When the craving comes over me to possess some rare piece of furniture or glass, a picture or vase, I invariably fall. My will power is atrophied."

The sword was descending. I watched it lower inch by inch. Curran was right; he had the letters.

"I've thought about the case a good deal," he continued; "and the deeper I go into it the stronger is my conviction that Miss Foddick would be wise to settle the matter out of court."

I thanked Providence for his volubility. It had given me time to pull myself together.

"Yes!" I murmured, sinking lower into my chair and lazily watching the smoke spirals of my cigaret, although there was not a lazy nerve in my body. "Well, between ourselves, I think Miss Foddick would probably prefer to avoid the publicity."

"Exactly," Achison agreed. "You're young and, therefore, a little hard, Dandridge; and I suppose you'll look on me as a sentimental old fool. But I've seen so much, the cruelties we obstinately impose on ourselves and others; and, speaking as a friend, and quite outside of any interest in my client, I would, if I were Miss Sara, pay double what this woman asks to hush the thing up. For, whichever way things go, there is a good deal more to be considered than the mere winning or losing of the case. At present no one takes the slightest interest in the case, but Allan Foddick's late wife, but let the scandal break, and Miss Sara Foddick's mother becomes a living personality. She rises from her forgotten grave, an obscure Spanish dancer, the companion of criminals, herself a proven thief. Miss Foddick must face that fact."

"I have no doubt she will consider all you say," I replied. "But, on the other hand, a woman of her wealth must be prepared to have many ingenious confidence and blackmailing schemes tried on her."

He gave me a penetrating glance from his steel gray eyes, and pursued his lips.

"Madam Adelbron has a fairly strong case. To tell the truth, I haven't much doubt that she is more or less of an adventuress. But discounting that rather patent fact, she was in South America at the time she claims, she was a friend of Mrs. Allan Foddick's; she has a receipt for jewels and money in what she claims to be Mrs. Allan Foddick's handwriting. Now, Miss Sara will have to produce specimens of that handwriting, and if in the opinion of experts the document Adelbron holds is genuine, then she wins hands down. I took that receipt, by the way, to one of the cleverest forgers in the country, now in Sing Sing, a man who is an authority on inks and paper. He says that both are of South American manufacture, and at least twenty years old."

"Did you consult any other experts?" I asked. "I shall naturally want the receipt examined, and I don't want to employ the same."

"Reed and Walters have both passed on it for me and, incidentally, both agreed with the forger. It is in my office. Your men may see it at any time they please."

"Thanks," I said. "I will attend to it tomorrow."

He dropped the subject then, and began to talk about a murder trial in which he was counsel for the defense, bringing up a nice legal point which we wrangled over amicably until, with a belated realization that I was staying too long, I said good night.

He had made the first move, and had led triumphs. It must have been, because he was in doubt, if the Adelbron claim was as invulnerable as he pretended, if there was nothing for Sara to do but compromise—which was, of course, an Achisonian euphemism for paying through the nose—then why the effort to impress me with the strength of his case?

Was it not then reasonable to suppose that somewhere in his chain of evidence there must be one or two pretty weak links?

The taxi cab stopped at my door. My foot was on the first step of the stairs leading to my walk-up apartment when I suddenly remembered that I was out of cigarettes, and turned back to go to the corner and get some. I supplied my needs, and was coming out of the shop when some one hailed me.

It was Graham Smith. I hadn't seen him since the afternoon that Mr. Foddick had been brought home, and he had pestered me with inconvenient questions. Now, as I caught his eye, I quailed. I knew that expression from college days. Solemn, and yet with a sort of relish in it—the look the cat wears when it sees a canary within tempting reach. What was he after, I wondered. Had he heard any rumors?

"Come on with me and have a bite of supper."

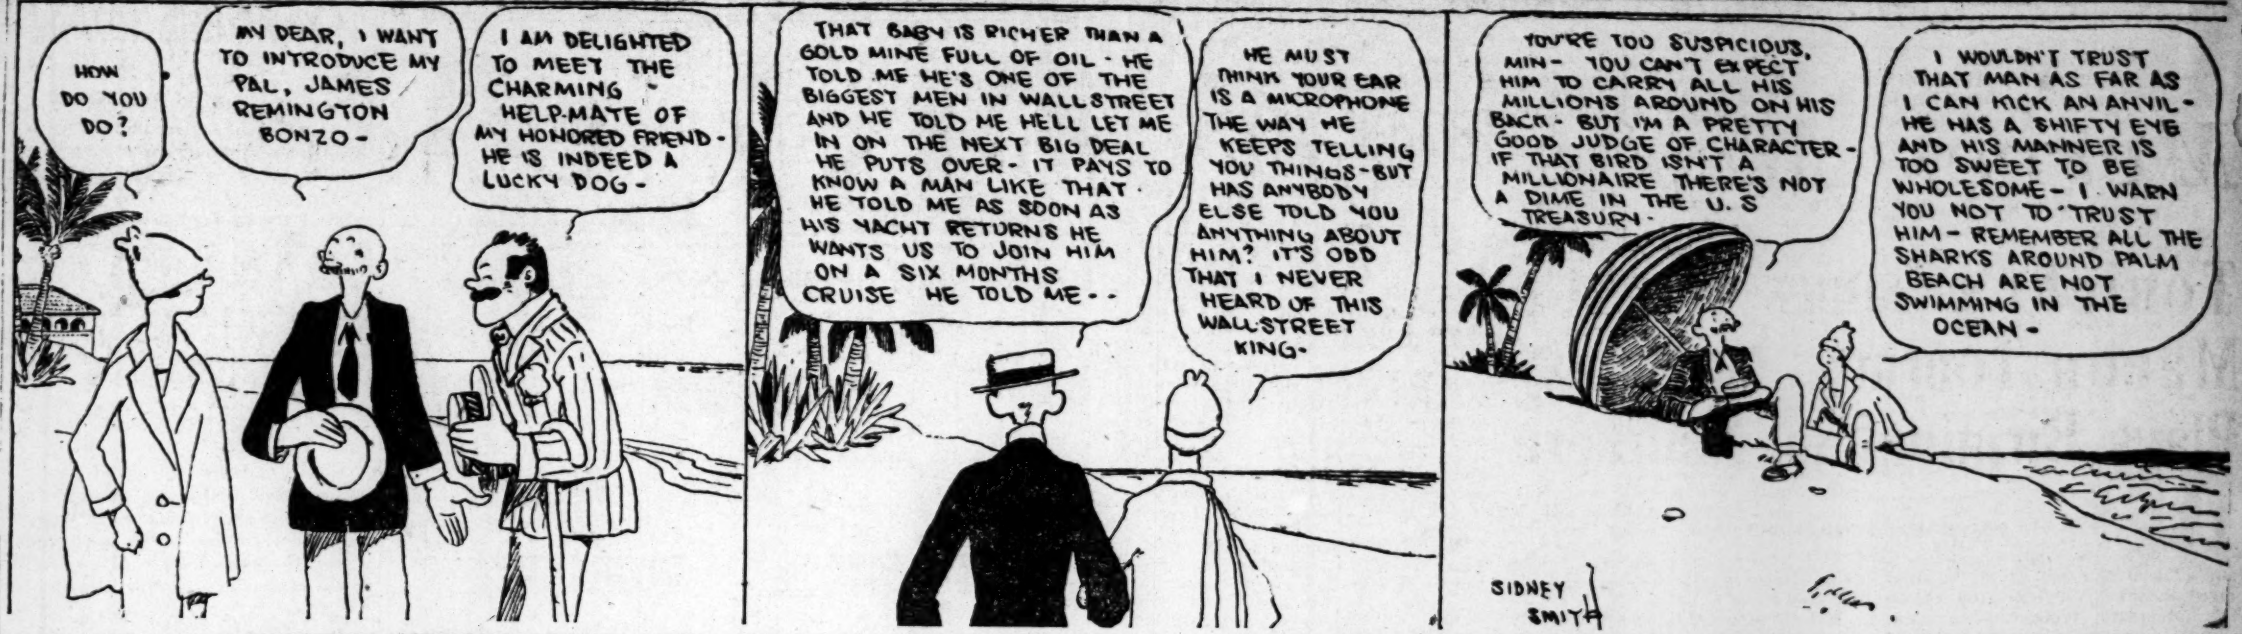

"It's late," I sagged away from him, and went through the business of looking at my watch. "There's a Pike's Peak of work before me, and 9 o'clock in the morning is 9 o'clock in the morning."

"Come on," he said inflexibly, tucking his arm in mine.

One might as well try to resist an officer with a warrant. It was a simple case. If I didn't go with Graham, Graham would go with me.

Mercer Meets Citadel for S. I. A. A. Crown

Tonight's Games Wind Up Macon Tourney; Newberry Plays Birmingham-Southern

BY LEONARD WILLIAMS.

Macon, Ga., February 27.—(Special.)—With little trouble Mercer and Citadel emerged from the semi-finals of the S. I. A. A. cage tournament tonight. Citadel romped on Birmingham-Southern, 42 to 24, in the first game, while Mercer swamped the Newberry Redbirds, 78 to 15.

Tomorrow night the Mercer and Citadel fires will clash in the Macon sports arena for first honors of the 1925 S. I. A. A. season. Preceding this game, Newberry and Birmingham-Southern are to play for third and fourth place.

Douglas, of Citadel, tore through Birmingham-Southern's opposition for 19 points. The Alabama lacked little themselves in speed, but few baskets seen in Macon this year can keep up with this dashing forward.

Sanders Scores First. Sanders, of Citadel, opened the scoring with 1 point on free throw, but Price, Birmingham guard, passed him with a field goal. The score stood 2-0 in favor of the Citadel until Sanders scored on a layup, 2-2.

The outcome was apparent from that time. Douglas was unbeatable. With Teddy Weeks, running mate at forward, the Citadel star kept the ball within his territory throughout the remaining minutes, although Birmingham-Southern's guardsmen brought it out as often. Hill, towering guard of the losers, possibly deserves more credit than any other of his outfit, although Kimbrough, at center, led the Birmingham scoring with 12 points.

Hill cut down Citadel's score by at least 8 points merely by covering the basket.

TECH FROSH WILL PLAY RIVERSIDE

Riverside Military Academy's basketball team will play the Georgia Tech freshman quintet Saturday afternoon at the Tech court at 5 o'clock.

Coach Mooney is bringing to Atlanta the same team which played such fine basketball in the O. T. A. A. tourney.

This is the second game of the season between Riverside and Tech's Frosh. In the first game mainly through the masterful playing of Tiny Hearn, Tech's Frosh, earned victory.

Since that game, however, Coach Mooney has set a fast pace for his boys and they now are a much improved team. In Riddle and some of the other Riverside players, Mooney has some of the best stars of the state.

This is the last game of the season for Tech's Frosh, who have lost but one game, that queer affair in Macon, by 2 points.

They never hit their best stride, although the visitors strained time after time to reduce the Bear lead. J. Williams, Newberry forward and captain, played the game admirably, but he could not do that and shoot, too.

McPhee, Newberry center, tossed a field goal and two successful foul throws, giving him his team's lead with four points. Although a substitute, Wallcut at forward, displayed the best form that the losers put on the floor. Only field shot was a long, low side-court toss.

Butler Brothers Shine. The Butler brothers, A. and C., for the red-shirted five, kept Mercer on the run, repeatedly reducing the Bears' chances at goal. Malcolm Greene, of the Baptist quint, rang six field shots, and three free throws for the game's high-marker, 15 points.

Bucie Skinner went second with 12. Skinner played his usual game but the Mercer spirit evidently was under cover, or in waiting for tomorrow's finals.

Neither this nor the preceding fracas could be called slow. While the Bears were largely one-sided in both affairs, the losers kept each of the winners fighting for points to the last.

Saturday night marks the closing event of the S. I. A. A. with Mercer and Citadel holding the limelight. Speculation in the Central City is rife as to a possible winner, with the home team, Mercer, as favorite. The spirit of Citadel, however, are throwing enough doubt into the outlook to insure a fight to the last.

Tech Will Complete Grant Field 'U' This Summer

The great concrete "U" planned for Grant field will be completed this summer, it was assured yesterday when the Georgia Tech Athletic association announced that it has let the contract for the connecting link between the two concrete side stands to the A. K. Adams Construction company.

The contract price for the semi-circular stands at the North Avenue end of the field was $105,480. The new stands will replace the present wooden stands.

The total seating capacity of Grant field, when the new concrete section is completed and the wooden stands erected at the north end of the field will be 40,000.

The work on the new section of the stands will be started immediately and will be completed by September 1. It will not interfere with baseball and track work during the spring term.

The concrete stands that were erected on the east side of the field last year seat 12,000 and the old stands on the west side of the field seat 8,000. The new section will seat 11,000 and the temporary stands, when completed only for football, will seat 9,000, making a total of 40,000.

Shelton and Roberts are the architects for the work and presented the plans to the Athletic association recently. Friday afternoon the bids were opened and the contract awarded.

STRIB FIGHTS WILLIE HOPPE DELANEY BEATEN IN TO DRAW UPSET

Milwaukee, Wis., February 27.—In one of the biggest upsets of the international 182 baltine billiard championship tournament, Erich Hagelacher, German champion, tonight came from behind to defeat Willie Hoppe, world's champion, 400 to 200 in 12 innings.

The victory left Jake Senefelder, former champion, who ran 400 from spot last night against Hagelacher, in the lead in the standings.

Delaney was warned twice for hitting low, and Stribling was permitted to hit Delaney at will. In the first round Stribling said he was hit low also. Stribling weighed 172-14 and Delaney 168.

LAGRANGE MEET ENDS SATURDAY

LaGrange, Ga., February 27.—(Special.)—Hogansville will play LaGrange and Waverly Hall will battle with Columbus, in the semi-finals of the fourth district basketball tournament here tomorrow afternoon.

The pairings came as a result of the Hoagansville-West Point game. Hoagansville's superiority was shown when it had 25 markers to West Point's 22.

Waverly Hall put Mt. Zion away, 81 to 26, while LaGrange did practically the same thing to Senoia, winning 32 to 14.

WRENS REACHES CAGE FINALS

Louisville, Ga., February 27.—(Special.)—Today's games of the Jefferson county basketball tournament semi-finals were played between the girls of Grange and Wrens, Grange winning, 9 to 8; and the boys' teams of Wrens and Bartow, Wrens winning, 18 to 10. Tomorrow the boys of Wrens and Waverly lock horns in the finals, and the girls of Stapleton and Grange will play. Each winning team will be presented a beautiful loving cup. The officials are Stansbury, referee; Hardeman, timer; Brown, scorer.

SEMINARY SIX WINS, 24 TO 14

Washington Seminary defeated the Commercial High sextet in a fast and interesting game of basketball here yesterday afternoon by a score of 24 to 14.

Captain Dallas was the shining light of the entertainment. She made four points more than the opposition was able to secure, registering 18.

EPWORTH STARS PLAY TONIGHT

The all-star teams of the Epworth union will clash in their initial tilt tonight on the Wesley Memorial court when the girls' all-stars battle the Y. W. H. A. beginning at 7:45 o'clock, and the boys will do battle with the Epworth workers, a local Sunday school aggregation.

TIGER MEETS BOGASH MAR. 30

Boston, February 27.—Tiger Flowers, of Atlanta, Ga., and Lou Bogash, of Bridgeport, Conn., middleweights, have been matched for a bout in Boston March 30, it was announced here tonight. Bogash won on a foul

GRANT PARK, TRINITY WIN

BY DAVID JENKINS. The worst games in the history of the 1925 season of the Epworth union took place Friday night, when only two of the four scheduled games were played. One was a forfeit, another a postponement, and the two that were played were too long-drawn-out.

The Grant Park-Capitol View game was the best, with the Park boys holding an 18-to-13 lead at the final whistle. Trinity, without exerting itself to any extent, whipped the Capitol View, 33 to 15.

Kirkwood boys were minus two players when the time for playing came around, and were forced to forfeit to Park Street. The only girls game carded was postponed, this being between Grant and Trinity.

Mayo and Stone starred for Grant Park while Brewer did good work on the other side of the story. Substitutions were made very frequently.

The combination of Bunch, Pennington and Fincher was entirely too much for Calvary, each player registering 10, 11, and 14 points respectively. The shooting of J. Lewis for the losers was another feature.
